STRIKE OVER; MEN AND ROAD TO ARBITRATE

Southern Machinists Go Back to Work Monday All Over the Big System.

PEACE BROUGHT ABOUT THROUGH THE EFFORTS OF CIVIC FEDERATION

Men Who Struck All Go Back; Men Who Stayed Hold Jobs; Strike-Breakers to Leave the Shops, but May Be Reemployed If They Are Needed.

Washington, November 2.—The strike of machinists on the Southern railway, which was inaugurated recently for an increase in wages, was settled today.

The strike was declared off and the men will return to work Monday without prejudice on account of the strike. The men who remained with the company are to continue at work. Those who have been employed since the strike will be retired from the shops before Monday morning, but without prejudice as to their continued employment by the company in other places or as to their future employment in the shops if needed.

The wages offered to the machinists prior to the strike are to apply from November 5 and the company's proposition to arbitrate the difference between that scale and the demand of the union has been accepted.

This adjustment took place at a conference in New York between members of the National Civic Federation, the officers of the Southern Railway Company, the president of the International Association of Machinists and the local committee of Southern railway machinists.

Special instructions will be issued as to how to proceed with these new employees. The wages offered by the company to the machinists prior to the strike are to apply from November 5, and the company's proposition to arbitrate the difference between that scale and the demand of uniform advance of 2 cents per hour for machinists and 1 cent per hour for apprentices has been accepted, and the arbitration will be arranged for under the plan and basis suggested by the company as promptly as practicable.

RUSSIA IS BADLY ALARMED.

Thinks Increase of Japanese Army Means Trouble Ahead.

St. Petersburg, November 2.—The semi-official Strana today, reviewing the aims of the visit of the Russian foreign minister, M. Iswolsky, to Paris, attributes to him the purpose of cementing the Franco-Russian alliance and the growing Anglo-Russian rapproachement into a new triple allfance in the interests of the three powers concerned, which clash with those of Germany in Turkey, Persia and Japan. Russia, the paper adds, feels that common action would be advantageous, especially in Persia, where the Anglo-Russian agreement is meeting with German interference. In regard to Japan, the Strana recalls the Japanese dissatisfaction with the Portsmouth treaty, and says the Russian government is convinced that reorganization and increase of the Japanese army and navy are directed toward a war of revenge, Great Britain, according to the semi-official paper, shares in Russia's alarm at Japanese intentions.

To Consider Battleship's Designs.

Washington, November 2.—Secretary Bonaparte today appointed a board consisting of assistant secretary of the navy, engineer in chief of the navy, chief of the bureau of ordnance, the chief constructor of the navy, Captain J. P. Merrill, Captain R. P. Rodgers and Captain Richard Wainwright, to consider the designs and plans submitted to the navy department for the new battleship. The board is to select a plan which in its judgment is calculated to comply with the act of congress and to report not later than November 20.

British at Malaga.

Malaga, Spain, November 2.—A squadron of British warships arrived here today. King Alfonso and Queen Victoria are expected to reach Malaga tomorrow.

GREAT COTTON PICKER OR CHAMPION LIAR.

WACO, Tex., November 2.—Zeb Johnson, a young man living near Martin, this county, claims to hold the world's record in cotton picking. In the presence of eleven other pickers, he has just gathered in one day 1,135 pounds of cotton, and in the forenoon of the same day picked over 700 pounds.

NEGRESS GIVES BIRTH TO FOUR CHILDREN.

MOBILE, Ala., November 2. Dr. Robert L. Young, of West Greene, Ala., writes The Register that on October 22 he attended Mary Williams, a negress, who gave birth to four children—two boys and two girls. They lived three hours.

DEATH TAKES J. M. HIGH AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

Physicians Had Given Up Hope Several Days Before End Came.

J. M. HIGH,
Prominent Atlanta Merchant Who Died Yesterday Afternoon.

AFTER a long, brave fight for life, death came to J. M. High, prominent merchant of Atlanta, at his home at 528 Peachtree street, yesterday afternoon at 3:40 o'clock.

Mr. High had been in poor health for some time, but several weeks ago his illness took a more critical turn. Over a week ago it was announced by the physician in attendance upon the sick man that he had no chance to live, and several times it was stated that his death was a matter of a few hours.

But Mr. High made a fight for life to the very end, and rally after rally gave him a longer lease on life. Wednesday night he appeared to have reached the end of his strength. He would die before morning, said those at his bedside.

But about 4 o'clock Thursday morning Mr. High rallied again, and it was announced that he would live through the night, his condition being the same as that of the day before.

Immediately after the news of Mr. High's death had been made known, the doors of the big dry goods store which bears his name were closed and the store cleared of shoppers and employees.

Mr. High was one of the best known men in the south, and had a wide ac-

PEARY FAILS IN EFFORT, BUT BREAKS THE RECORD

Intrepid Arctic Explorer Reaches Latitude 87 Degrees and 6 Minutes.

New York, November 2.—The United States now holds the record of "furthest north," 87 degrees 6 minutes. This feat was accomplished by Commander Robert E. Peary, of the United States navy. The intrepid Arctic explorer failed to reach the north pole as he had confidently hoped to do with his specially constructed vessel, the Roosevelt, but he penetrated nearer to the pole than the duke of Abruzzi's expedition, which had held the Arctic record, 86 degrees 34 minutes. What Commander Peary did and his experiences during the past year in the frozen north are briefly but vividly summarized in a communication received tonight by Herbert L. Bridgeman, secretary of the Peary Arctic Club. This communication follows:

Letter From Peary.

"Hopedale, Labrador, via Twillingate, N. F., November 2.—Herbert L. Bridgeman: Rosevelt wintered north coast Grand land, somewhere north Alert winter quarters. Went north with sledges February via Heckla and Columbia. Delayed by open water between 84 and 85 degrees. Beyond 85 six days. Gale disrupted ice, destroyed caches, cut off communication with supporting bodies and drifted due east. Reached 87 degrees six minutes north latitude over ice, drifting steadily eastward. Returning with eight dogs. Drifter eastward, delayed by open water, reaching north coast Greenland in straitened conditions. Killed musk oxen and recurned along Greenland coast to ship.

"Two supporting parties driven on north coast Greenland. One rescued by me in surviving condition. After one week reconperation on Roosevelt sledged west, completing north coast Grant land and reached other land near 100th meridian. Homeward voyage incessant battle with ice, storms and head winds. Roosevelt magnificent ice fighter and sea boat. No deaths or illness in expedition.

"PEARY."

News Was Not Expected.

After furnishing the Associated Press the contents of Commander Peary's report, Mr. Bridgeman said that the receipt of the news was a surprise to him, because he had supposed it had become too late in the season for Commander Peary to send word of his venture. Mr. Bridgeman added that the message spoke for itself, and that since he did not know more of the results of Commander Peary's efforts to reach the pole than the public did, he could hardly comment upon the dispatch.

There was little doubt, however, he said, that Commander Peary was coming home. This seems to be borne out by the routing of the dispatch. Hopedale or Hoffenthal is a Moravian mission station on the east coast of Labrador. Twillingate is a port on the east coast of Newfoundland. Mr. Bridgeman said the message was probably mailed by Commander Peary from Hopedale to the most accessible cable point.

Robert Edwin Peary was born in 1854. He is a civil engineer in the United States navy. His first trip to the Arctic regions was made in 1886. In September, 1902, he reached latitude 84.17 north. His wife accompanied her husband on three of his expeditions as far as the winter quarters.

The previous record of the point nearest the pole was made by Captain Cagni, duke of the Abruzzi's Italian expedition, who reached 86.3 north, or within 237 statute miles of the pole. The point reached by Peary, 87.6 placed him about 203 miles from the pole.

Charged With Inhumanity.

Columbia, S. C., November 2.—(Special.) W. E. Cookson, a watchman of the Southern railway, was arrested Thursday, charged with unmercifully beating a 2-year-old stepchild. The child is deformed, and, it is said, bears marks of its stepfather's cruel blows.

POLICE TRYING TO FIND PERSONS WHO LEFT BABE OUT IN THE WEEDS TO DIE

THE police are making strenuous efforts to locate the person or persons who left the little baby girl in the weeds near the corner of DeKalb avenue and Delta place late Thursday evening.

So far, Officer Coogler, who has been detailed to work on the case, has not found any definite clue to the guilty parties, but he has reported to the chief of police that he has found some links in the chain and has secured evidence of rather a sensational character which he cannot now make public.

This is the first time since little Render Fuller, the cripple boy who is at present in the Grady hospital, was discovered in the woods, that a child babe has been found where it had been cruelly thrown out so that it might die from hunger and exposeure. Some six or seven years ago Render Fuller was found in the woods opposite the lot upon which the federal prison was afterwards erected. The child had an affection of the spine which made him a hopeless cripple, and his father, who lived in the country, had abandoned the little fellow to die. Through the efforts of a reporter of The Constitution the father of Render Fuller was found and he was sentenced to twelve months in the chaingang.

The finding of the babe, by two negro men Thursday evening has caused quite a stir in police circles, and every possible effort will be made to bring to justice the persons who have committed a crime that is regarded as cruel and heinous.

The babe was taken to the Home for the Friendless yesterday morning, and there it will remain unless the parents can be found.

The infant is a pretty little girl, with rosy cheeks, and she appears to be in perfect health, despite her experience of lying out in the woods in the cold for several hours.

RUSSELL HOPKINS AND WIFE, AFTER AUTOMOBILE SMASH-UP, END RIDE IN GROCERY WAGON

RUSSELL HOPKINS, the dashing young Atlanta whip, whose elopement and marriage so electrified his friends, returned from his honeymoon Saturday and has since been much in evidence with his pretty young wife, says a recent issue of Town Topics.

They were the guests of Miss Madelaine Sylvester at Daly's theater on Saturday afternoon, and after the feast of "The Spring Chicken" they turned up at the Waldorf, where they were forced to hold a sort of impromptu reception. Recently Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins were seen on the old Boston road, riding toward town in a grocery wagon. It developed that they were victims of an automobile smashup. In addition to the cost for repairs, Hopkins was obliged to contribute ten dollars for transportation to the driver of the grocery wagon. Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins will spend part of the winter in Egypt.

GREATER CITY BATTLE FIELD IN LAST DAYS

HEARST PAYS RESPECTS TO CROKER, M'CARREN AND SECRETARY ROOT

Hughes Also Put in a Hard Night, While Innumerable Meetings Were Held in the Interests of the Lesser Lights on Various Tickets.

New York, November 2.—Echoes of yesterday's developments in the political situation in this state were heard on every side today in the comments of political leaders on the Richard Croker interview and the speech of Secretary Root at Utica last night.

Fresh interest was aroused by the publication of a letter from William J. Bryan to Bird S. Coler, borough president of Brooklyn, in which the writer expressed the hope that all democrats would support William R. Hearst for governor. These things and the further fact that both Charles E. Hughes and W. R. Hearst were once more on the stubbornly contested grounfi of Greater New York brought the political interest to a fever pitch.

HOW TWO CANDIDATES GOT AWAY WITH DAY

Mr. Hughes left Utica early today for New York city. In route he made stops at Schenectady, Catskill and Newburgh. At the former place he made three speeches, one in a hall, and one each at the works of the two large industrial concerns, where he spoke directly to many thousands of working men, appealing to them to support his party in the coming elections. Reaching this city at 6 o'clock he took but a brief rest before entering upon the long list of meetings scheduled for tonight in Brooklyn and Long Island. It was late in the night before he concluded. Reviewing his up-state campaign tonight Mr. Hughes expressed satisfaction at the prospects of republican success, and declared he was gratified "with the hearty support of the republican organization throughout the state." He added that "the support of old line democrats was probably the most significant feature of the campaign," and that it was now a simple "question of getting out the vote."

HEARST'S VOICE CUT SHORT HIS SPEECHES

With failing voice, but determined spirit, William R. Hearst, gubernatorial candidate on the Independence League and democratic tickets, started out tonight to fulfill the programme mapped out for him by his campaign managers. The schedule called for thirteen addresses before as many audiences in Brooklyn and in Queens county. Wherever the candidate went he met with enthusiastic reception. Crowds cheered his appearance at many places, and other crowds that hoped to see him and did not, cheered for him just the same. Mr. Hearst departed from his prepared speech in one instance to reply to a question from the audience about "Murphy." Mr. Hearst said:

"I went to the Buffalo convention with 218 votes outside of Greater New York, and Murphy, nor no other boss, would have dared to oppose me."

Generally throughout the evening Mr. Hearst spoke substantially as follows:

"I was attacked last night by Mr. Croker, who claimed to represent democracy, and Mr. Root, who claimed to represent republicanism. I know nothing that has tended more clearly to show the truth of my statement that in this campaign corporation democrats and corporation republicans were united in support of the corporation lawyer at the head of the corporation ticket.

"Mr. Croker, whose ice trust mayor I drove out of office, indorses McCarren as a noble example of corporation democrat. Mr. Root, corporation attorney for the Metropolitan Traction Company in the Jake Sharp bribery cases, and for the whisky trust, the tobacco trust, the steel trust, the sugar trust, the gas trust, the watch trust and the insurance trust, indorses Mr. Hughes, corporation atorney for the lighting trust, the ship-building trust, the New York, Westchester and Boston franchise grab and the sugar trust.

"Last year Mr. Ryan issued, through Mayor McClellan, postal cards bearing libelous and indecent attacks upon me which the United States government stopped in the mails. This year Mr. Ryan puts forth those same indecent and slanderous attacks, through his corporation attorney, through a man who is still his faithful servitor, though in public office, and partly paid by the people.

IHMSEN SAYS HEARST WILL SWEEP THE STATE.

Max. F. Ihmsen, Mr. Hearst's campaign manager for the Independence League, gave out a statement tonight in which he said:

"Mr. Hearst will carry greater New York by 150,000, and the country portions of the state by 50,000. I base this statement on a careful canvas and 500 special polls. He will carry the larger cities and industrial towns by a substantial majority. He will cut down the republican votes in the rural districts. He will carry eighteen counties."

ON DECISION OF JUDGE NEWMAN DEPENDS WHOLE USEFULNESS OF STATE RAILROAD COMMISSION

---Attorney General Hart.

BOTH SIDES OF CASE IN BRIEF

Contention of the State That in 1890 the commission permitted the Central to advance its rates 10 per cent in excess of the standard tariff, and in 1893, because of distressing financial conditions and the general depression of business, the commission authorized the railroad to make a further increase of 15 per cent over the standard tariff, thus making a total advance of 25 per cent allowed over the standard tariff; that the present physical and financial condition of the Central, and the general prosperity of the country, warrants the reduction which the enforcement of circular 316 will effect, and that it will put into effect rates higher than those allowed to be charged after the advance in rates in 1890. If circular 316 be not enforced, declares the state, the commission has reached the end of its usefulness and ought to go out of business.

Contention of the Railroad That the enforcement of the circular in question would reduce the gross income of the road $38,604.88 annually, depriving it of a fair return upon the value of its property, and that it would amount to the taking of its property without due process of law, contrary to the provisions of both the state and United States constitusions of both the railroad is entitled to earn the legal rate of interest current in its locality upon its investment, and that the commission has no right to determine what is a fair return upon the valuation of its property so long as the rates charged for services are reasonable and just.

Case Now in Federal Court Involves Rights Vital to the Interests of Georgia.

IF RAILROADS WIN CASE STATE MIGHT AS WELL ABOLISH THE COMMISSION

Closing Day of the Injunction Suit Brought by the Central of Georgia Against Circular No. 316 Brings Startling Statements—Full History of the Case.

The whole usefulness of the Georgia railroad commission in securing just freight rates for the people of Georgia, says Attorney General Hart, depends upon the decision of Judge Newman in the case of the injunction suit brought by the Central of Georgia railway against the commission to prevent the enforcement of Circular 316, which was concluded in the United States court yesterday, Judge Newman reserving decision.

The intent of Circular 316 is to transfer the Central Railway Company from class C to class B, thereby involving a reduction of approximately 10 per cent in its local freight rates.

The history of the case in brief is this: In 1893, owing to the general business depression, the Central, among other roads, was allowed to make a certain increased charge above the standard tariff fixed by the commission, for local hauls. In the case of the Central this increase amounted to 25 per cent. There was no interference with this increased charge up to 1906 when, a few months ago, the railroad commission, in view of the widespread and general improvement in business conditions, and in view of the fact that the Central, as well as other roads, had largely increased its earning power, took off 10 per cent of this increased charge, permitting the road to charge in future only 15 per cent in addition to the standard tariff for local hauls. The Central then brought suit for injunction to prevent the enforcement of this order on the ground that it was tantamount to a confiscation of its property. Similar

POOR FREIGHT SERVICE IS GIVEN BY RAILROADS TO ATLANTA MERCHANTS

JUST how many Atlanta shippers are suffering as the result of delayed freight is a question hard to determine.

That there are hundreds in this predicament in the city of Atlanta there is no doubt.

The volume of money which these delays involve is incalculable.

Two isolated instances will serve to illustrate how the railroads, by their dilatory tactics, are causing the Atlanta merchants to lose money.

On October 12, Edward O. Miles had shipped from Jacksonville a car of hides. On October 30, just eighteen days after the car was started, or was supposed to start, the car arrived in Atlanta.

Even more startling is the experience of the King Hardware Company. This company has had cars delayed so often that it has come to regard it as a matter of course. Through bitter experience the company has become long-suffering, and hopes for the best while it fears the worst.

Some Very Slow Trains.

Here are some instances of the experiences which the King Hardware Company has had:

October 9, the company was shipped from Indiana, Pa., via the Southern a car of goods. This car arrived October 30.

On September 24, by the same road from Elyria, Ohio, a car was shipped. It arrived October 30.

On October 3, by the same road, from Ithaca, New York, was shipped a car. It arrived October 9.

October 6, by the same road, from Akron, Ohio, was shipped a car. It arrived October 29.

Over the Louisville and Nashville, on October 2, was shipped from Troy, Ohio, a car. It arrived October 25.

From Plymouth, Mich., October 5, a car was shipped via the Southern, arriving in Atlanta October 25.

It took twenty days to get a similar car from the same place by the same road via the Louisville and Nashville.

Central, a car from Reading, Pa., shipped on September 4, arrived in Atlanta October 19.

Most startling of the troubles of the King Hardware Company, however, is the case of a car load shipment from Philadelphia over the Seaboard Air Line, March 27, which did not arrive in Atlanta until June 23. All efforts on the part of the King Hardware Company to trace this car proved futile. The railroad officials said it was somewhere, but just where they did not know, or refused to say.

Looks Like a Snail.

The snail has been made to look like a 60-mile per hous train by comparison with the slow trains that operate through Georgia and Florida.

On October 12 there was shipped from Jacksonville, Fla., a car load of hides consigned to E. O. Miles, of Atlanta. The car was routed over the Coast Line and the Central of Georgia and should have arrived in Atlanta the third day after shipment.

The hides were needed badly. Day after day passed and they did not arrive. Mr. Miles used the wires, but to no avail. The car was somewhere, but where was the question. The railroad officials didn't know and, of course, Mr. Miles did not know.

"Was it lost?" asked Mr. Miles.

"Oh, no," the railroad officials assured him. "It was not lost. It was somewhere on the way."

All of which was very reassuring to Mr. Miles who has infinite patience, particularly with railroads, for he knows their ways.

On October 30, just eighteen days after the car had been shipped, it put in an appearance in Atlanta.

Instantly Mr. Miles was rejoiced. He felt like a man who suddenly finds a $10 bill on the street for which he is not looking. At first he was inclined to welcome the car and think no more about it, but something prompted him to figure.

Here is the result of his figuring:

Car, C., H. & D., No. 8220, shipped from Jacksonville, Fla., to Atlanta. Started October 12, reached Atlanta October 30. Time consumed, eighteen days. Distance, 360 miles; average per day, 20 miles; average per hour, 5-6 of one mile.

All of which set Mr. Miles to thinking. Doing a little more figuring Mr. Miles estimated that he and a few helpers could have carried the hides afoot to Atlanta and made much better time.

BRYAN TAKES PLACE IN HEARST CORNER

Nebraskan Asks All His Friends to Support the Editor Candidate.

New York, November 2.—Any doubt that may have existed as to the attitude of William J. Bryan toward the candidacy of W. R. Hearst was removed today when Bird S. Coler, president of the borough of Brooklyn, gave out a portion of a letter from William J. Bryan saying that the Nebraskan "is very anxious to see Hearst elected."

This indorsement of Mr. Hearst was given out by Mr. Bryan's consent.

This, in connection with Mr. Croker's recent interview, caused much comment and interest today.

THE BRYAN LETTER.

NEW YORK, November 2.—William J. Bryan has written a letter to Bird S. Coler, borough president of Brooklyn, indorsing the candidacy of William R. Hearst for governor. Mr. Bryan's letter follows: "My Dear Mr. Coler: I am very anxious to see Hearst elected and would have come to New York to help him if I thought an outside speaker would have been of assistance. From indications, however, he is going to win, as he ought to. If I have any friends there I want them to vote for him. BRYAN."

action was taken by the commission with reference to the Southern railway and the Atlantic Coast Line, which likewise instituted injunction proceedings, and these are now pending before Judge Newman. A final decision in the Central's case will determine also the other cases as the same principles are involved.

The case was argued for the state by Attorney General John C. Hart and W. A. Wimbish, who represent the Atlanta Freight Bureau, while for the Central appeared T. M. Cunningham, Jr., and Colonel A. R. Lawton, of Savannah. All of these made arguments; Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Wimbish opening for their respective clients, and Attorney General Hart and Colonel Lawton making the concluding arguments.

STATE'S VIEW OF CASE SUMMED UP BY HART

The state's view of this case is well summed up in the concluding sentences of the argument presented to the court by Attorney General Hart in which he said:

"If this order of the railroad commission of Georgia is not enforceable, as applicable to this complaint under this record, then we have reach the end of its usefulness and it ought to go out of business. The public should not be taxed to support an instrumentality no longer of use, and the officials constituting the commission should welcome its dissolution; for to accept salaries without rendering service, is hardly short of unlawfully thrusting their hands into the public treasury."

This is a pretty pointed and emphatic statement, but it is one which Judge Hart considered fully justified in view of the claims of confiscation which is set up by the railroads every time an effort is made to reduce freight rates, even though this is done after a full showing as to the justification for such reductions, from the commission's standpoint.

In the argument presented on behalf of the state, attention was called to the fact that counsel for the Central had made the statement that the road now has more business than it can possibly dispatch, and that it does not regard at this period the tender of freight to be shipped in the light of any favor.

The state enters denial of the claim made by the railroad company that the action of the railroad commission is confiscatory. The railroad company claims that the circular fixes the tariff below the cost of transportation, and that it amounts, therefore, to taking their property without due process of law. The further claim is made that it amounts to a denial of the equal protection of the laws, in violation of the state and federal constitutions.

The state insists that the classification is just and reasonable and that, though enforced, the railroad company will still receive on the property it has employed in its business just and reasonable compensation for the service rendered.

In the progress of the trial Judge Newman stated from the bench that the burden is upon the railroad company to make good its allegations before it will be entitled to a further continuance of the restraining order.

COMMISSIONER HAS RIGHT TO FIX REASONABLE RATES

The state holds to the right of the railroad commission under the law to fix reasonable and just rates for transportation. It concedes that it is not within the power of the commission to require a common carrier to transport freight and passengers at a rate so small as to be below the cost of transportation. It concedes that these common carriers are entitled to a just and reasonable return upon their investments.

But if the railroad commission says, for instance, that 5 per cent is a fair return upon the capital invested in railroad properties, the state does not concede that any court has the right to set its judgment up against that of the commission and say, for example, that the commission is wrong and that the return should be 5½ per cent.

While conceding the right to a just and reasonable return on capital invested, the state differs radically from the railroads as to the method of arriving at the value of the investment. For instance as Judge Hart says:

"The president of this company occupies a position inconsistent when he swears that the property of the Central Railway Company in Georgia, when it is to be taxed to bear its proportionate part of the burdens of government, is worth only $16,000,000, but that when the public are to be taxed to support the property its values reached $49,000,000."

While it was an act of generosity on the part of the new railroad company to give to the old stockholders new bonds and stocks under the reorganization, Judge Hart holds that it has no right to be generous at the expense of the public.

During the eleven years since the reorganization of the Central $10,000,000 has been expended in permanent improvements, increasing the value of the property 33 1-3 per cent, and though the bondholders have received 5 per cent on their holdings and there remains a surplus in the company's treasury which could be paid to the stockholders if they wished it, "the holders of these securities protest and ask this court to enjoin the enforcement of a rate which affects their revenue to the extent of $38,000 on a return of $8,000,000. Their argument is that this circular which will affect their revenue only to the extent of one-thousandth part of one per cent, would amount to a confiscation of their property engaged in this transportation."

In concluding his argument Attorney General Hart ridiculed the plea of counsel for the railroad that it should be left alone to build up a surplus for a rainy day, especially in view of the fact that it has money in its treasury and nobody to pay it to.

"That," he said, "is the plea made by Major Hanson, the president of the corporation, read here and called an affidavit. That was a remarkable affidavit, pessimistic and prophetic. It was a combination of the lamentations of Jeremiah and the prophecy of Isaish, but without their inspiration. He treats a railroad, though a public carrier, and insists that its existence, its mission in life, is not unlike that of the individual. . . His plea might be appropriate in a convention assembled to make a constitution, but it is inappropriate after the constitution is made."

HERE ARE CONTENTIONS OF CENTRAL RAILWAY

The Constitution endeavored to obtain from Colonel A. R. Lawton, of the firm of Lawton & Cunningham, a succinct statement of the Central of Georgia Railway Company's side of the case, but Colonel Lawton was compelled to leave the city immediately after concluding his argument in behalf of the railroad, and could not on that account grant an interview. However, the main contentions of the argument made by T. M. Cunningham, Jr., and A. R. Lawton, counsel for the Central, are stated below.

Counsel for the Central went into the history of the capitalization of the railroad and showed the capitalization per mile at periods of ten years from the date of its organization up to the present time. The present capitalization per mile was stated to be $29,769—less than the mileage capitalization of any other railroad of the same size and importance in the United States, and less than its mileage capitalization at any other period in its history. It was declared that the United States interstate commerce commission had divided the railroads of the country into groups of five districts, the Central being in the fifth district, and its capitalization per mile being less than any other railroad in this district.

Counsel cited the case of Smyth vs. Ames, 169 U. S., in which it was held that a state railroad commission has no right to reduce freight rates so low that they will not produce fair returns upon that part of the railroad used for state commerce. To illustrate: If the Central produced an income of $3,300,000 per year, one-half of which was derived from state business, the value of that portion of the railroad devoted to state commerce is estimated at one-half of the total value of the whole railroad, and the state railroad commission cannot therefore reduce the returns from state commerce so low that it will not produce a fair return of the whole value of the railroad. This is qualified always, it was argued, by the provision that the railroad company can never charge more for a given service than that service is reasonably worth. The state, however, contends that any return—however small—is sufficient, even though the railroad should make but $1 over the operating expenses, and that the rates could not be interfered with by the judiciary.

The modern development of the rule, as contended by counsel, was to the effect that the railroad is entitled to earn upon a fair valuation of its property a sum equal to the rate of interest current in its locality, which in Georgia is 7 per cent per annum.

To sustain this theory, counsel cited Louisville and Nashville railroad vs. Brown, 123 Fed. Rep.; the Milwaukee street railroad case; Covington Turnpike Company vs. Sanford, 164 U. S., and Beale vs. Wyman on railroad rate regulation.

ROAD NOT INSOLVENT WHEN IT REORGANIZED

Argument of counsel for the Central was especially interesting when it showed that when the railroad was reorganized it was not insolvent in the popular and generally accepted sense of the term, and that securities of the present railway were issued in exchange for the first mortgage securities of the old road and for the first and second mortgage securities of the subsidiary roads—such as the Mobile and Girard and the Columbus and Rome railroads—and that the floating indebtedness of the old company received a certain amount of income bonds, and the minority of the old company received a certain amount of third income bonds, while the majority stockholders received capital stock of the new Central system.

During the course of the argument counsel for the Central proposed to submit to a tax upon any sum or valuation if the state would allow it to make returns on that basis. Counsel explained that the valuation of the property returned to the state for taxation was less than the amount stated and sworn to in their original bill in this case by pointing out the fact that the property is as a general custom returned for taxation in this state at 60 per cent of its value, and the return the railroad made to the state was approximately 60 per cent of the value of the railroad.

They claimed that it was entirely unreasonable to say, as contended by Attorney General Hart, that if the railroad commission were enjoined from enforcing circular 316 that it ought to go out of business, pointing out the various rules and orders of the commission printed on page 9 of The Atlanta Constitution of this date as a sufficient reason why it should continue to exist, even though the court might hold that circular 316 was not enforceable. They contended, however, that the railroad had the right to earn a fair return upon the actual present value of its present property, and that the railroad commission has no right to prevent it from making such earnings so long as the services charged for were charged at reasonable rates. To deny the railroad this was, they insisted, tantamount to taking its property without due process of law, and contrary to the letter and spirit of the state constitution and the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the constitution of the United States.

BIG FLY WHEEL GOES TO PIECES

One of Its Spokes Kills Two of the Workmen in Factory.

Nashville, Tenn., November 2.—An engine in the factory of the Standard Candy Company, of this city, ran away early tonight and a big fly wheel went to pieces. A flying spoke brained Hamp Crockett, a negro fireman, and the same piece, it is thought, struck Dewitt Dortch, the negro watchman, cutting his throat and breaking his neck.

The building shook as if from an earthquake and the lights went out. Among the seventy-five employees were twenty-five girls, who were panic-stricken. They were with difficulty prevented from jumping from the second-story windows, and one man, in an effort to restrain them, was knocked down and trampled upon. They could not be induced to desend the steps, leading to where the dead men lay below, and were finally removed by means of ladders.

SOMETHING OF THE CAREER OF JOSEPH MADISON HIGH

By E. C. Bruffey.

A GEORGIAN by birth, a lifelong resident of the state, a man who loved the old red hills of the Empire State of the South as he loved his father, as he loved his mother, as he loved his wife and their offspring, was J. M. High, Joseph Madison High—the merchant connoisseur of the Gate City of the south.

There is not a dry goods merchant between New York and New Orleans who hesitated a second in placing Mr. High at the head in his classification, when called upon for an estimate of competent, almost unerring judges in his line of work.

Born in Madison, Morgan county, there he received his education. The son of a business man, a planter, a trader and a merchant, it was but natural that Mr. High should drift into a commercial life. While yet young, in fact, before he had finished his school days, he was behind the counter displaying the goods to the very best advantage. It was to the dry goods department he manifested an inclination, and smart and clever was his arrangement of the displays on hand. His father, Joseph R. High, a pioneer citizen of that section of the state, observed with a parental pride the aptitude of his son, and in every way encouraged him. Others were not slow in seeing the lad's good work, and among those who sought to advance young High was an uncle, Buck High, a banker, a large land owner and financier generally.

Completing his school days, Mr. High was given an interest in his father's store in Madison. As an interested man he worked as hard and as diligently as when an employee. Of a pleasant, affable disposition, he was quick in making friends, and a friend once made was his friend for all time. With the traveling men he became popular, and many an evening was made pleasant at the High home for the drummer who passed the night in Madison. It was under his parental roof Mr. High entertained his friends.

"For," said he to one of the leading business men of Atlanta then on the road, "I can make it just as pleasant at my father's home for my friends as I can uptown. Then, too, I know my home table will remind my friends of their home, while the sitting room will be free from those odors always prevalent at hotels."

Came to the Gate City.

For several years Mr. High continued in business with his father. In the latter '70s he came to Atlanta, and for a short time studied the field carefully. In the early '80s he and E. D. Herring, an Atlantan, opened a dry goods store on Whitehall street. In '83 or '84 Mr. High purchased Mr. Herring's interest, and formed a firm known as J. M. High & Co., W. J. Thomas, Beaumont Davison and E. L. Douglas being his business associates. In the latter '80s the store now occupied by the J. M. High Company on Whitehall, at Hunter, one of the largest floor spaces in the south, was constructed by the firm.

In January, 1890, W. J. Thomas, Beaumont Davison and E. L. Douglass withdrew from the firm and entered business, forming a firm which has made for itself a place in Atlanta's commercial history.

Mr. High then admitted as junior partners Forrest D. High, now of St. Louis; Frank M. Holt, now a resident of Eatonton, this state, and J. E. McClelland, one of Atlanta's successful lawyers, who has made a reputation in the commercial line of law equal to his reputation in the dry goods trade. In 1898 the firm dissolved, and for two years it was J. M. High. Three years later, in 1901, the J. M. High Company was organized with J. M. High president; W. R. McClelland, vice president and general manager and treasurer, and William H. Brittain, secretary.

Family of Mr. High.

Mr. High leaves besides his mother, two brothers, Mark E. High, a leading business man of Madison, and Forrest High, now in business in St. Louis. A sister, Mrs. Burney resides in Madison, Mr. Burney being one of the leading business men of that city. Miss Emma High, another sister, lives in Madison.

In 1880 Mr. Hugh was married to Miss Hattie Wilson of Atlanta. Mr. High was a cautious, prudent business man. In New York his judgment in his line was almost infallible. He never invested beyond a conservative point, and yet at times his outlay was considered by some as extravagant. But events following showed plainly that he had given the conditions a deeper study than those even who gave his work a criticism. Every detail of his large business was ever at his finger tips. He had the happy faculty of knowing when to buy, what to buy, how much to buy, and where to do his buying, so it seemed.

And then, too, he was a student of human nature. A face and a disposition were apparently an open book to him. At a first sight almost he seemed able to analyze a man's make-up. Ever ready to recognize merit, always anxious to show his appreciation, he never failed to make a friend of those working for him. Never did he have an employee who did not gladly make a confident of him. The greater the trouble the quicker Joe High came to the rescue. No one, but J. M. High himself, had cognizance of the many heartaches he alleviated, no one knows the men and women who will drop a tear over his grave—and it is doubtful if he knows, for he was a man to forget quickly a kindness he had done. Many an account on the books of that great firm has been squared by J. M. High's blue pencil mark.

John E. McClelland Talks.

Probably no one living knew J. M. High better than John E. McClelland. As a cash boy he started and as confidential man, a partner, a man trusted with every business and personal confidence he came from the store. In speaking of Mr. High Mr. McClelland said:

"Joe High was preeminently the best dry goods man in the south. While I was with him, I had an opportunity to study the system, the working and the management of the largest and most successful houses of the north, east and west. In my opinion, he had a greater practical knowledge of every detail of the business than any man I ever met. He knew intimately and thoroughly the duties of every one under the roof. The cash boy's work he could do just as well as could that of the general manager. System was his one word. Everything was systematically arranged, and for that reason there never was a clash of any kind. When he placed one in charge of any department he knew but one in that department. That one he held accountable. But at all times that one could depend fully upon Mr. High's absolute support. He never criticized a superior in the presence of a subordinate. He gave unmistable support to the head of every branch. He was methodical, energetic and nonsentimental in his business. There was no egotism or false pride about him. He was exactly what he seemed, measuring each day fod itself. He exacted from his employees a strict compliance with the rules of the house, but at the same time he was generous, and ever ready to help one over the rugged paths of life. In my opinion, Joe High will go down to future generations as the greatest dry goods man of the south. In larger fields, in the east, he could have easily been a Wanamaker, a Strauus, a Siegel, Cooper & Co."

PATIENTS IN HOSPITAL HEAR CHURCH CONCERT

To a packed and cheering house, the Wesley Memorial church chorus choir and orchestra gave an entertainment last night that has seldom been equaled in Atlanta.

Appreciating the labor that it entailed upon the choir director and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Boatman, the audience cheered them long and lustily.

The music rendered was one of the rarest treats an Atlanta audience has listened to in some time, and the packed house testified to the opinion of the people of the city as to what kind of an entertainment was to be given.

The reading of Miss Ford, the solo work on cornet by Mrs. Jones, the piano playing by Mrs. Boatman and the male quartet, composed of Messrs. Lowe, Kellogg, Schumaker and Morrell, were star features of the programme.

Hospital Patients Hear.

Rev. Frank Eakes surprised the audience in the middle of the programme by announcing that the Wesley Memorial hospital had been fitted with telephones and that a perfect receiver had been placed in the church, and that the patients at the hospital were hearing the music.

Fred Miles has equipped all the rooms at the hospital with phones, and today was the first day they have been in operation. So perfectly do they work that the recitation of Miss Ford was heard very distinctly by al the patients.

BRYAN IS FOUND IN HEARST CORNER

many, when asked what effect he thought the cablegram and interview of Mr. Croker would have on the coming election, said he did not think either they or the speech delivered by Secretary Root at Utica last night would change more than a few votes.

Mr. Bryan wrote, as quoted in a personal letter to Mr. Coler, dated at Madison, Ills., and received on October 31. The portion of the letter not given out was of a personal nature. Mr. Coler telegraphed Mr. Bryan and secured his authority to make a portion of the letter public.

Coler Talks of Letter.

Mr. Coler, in giving out the letter, said: "Mr. Bryan's letter should be enough for all democrats in this state. As for independents, I cannot imagine that they are going to take the advice of the piratical leaders of the old predatory system. They will, I think, before voting, ask themselves why every leading beneficiary of what was known as commercialism in politics, is now bitterly and hysterically hostile to Mr. Hearst. Some of Mr. Hearst's newspaper opponents must think the American public has lost its sense of honor when they solemnly quote statements of Croker and McCarren, those ideal reformers.

"Mr. Root's speech last night will, I think, help Mr Hearst. It reminds me of the poster which contributed so much towards our success last year. A cowardly slander is a cowardly slander, no matter who utters it."

MR. BRYAN CONFIRMS LETTER SENT TO COLER.

Omaha, Neb., November 2.—William J. Bryan, when shown tonight the extract from his letter indorsing the candidacy of W. R. Hearst for the governorship of New York said:

"That letter is authentic. I have been writing letters and giving out interviews all through the campaign to the same effect. I have indorsed Mr. Hearst, and I want to see him elected.

"I saw a statement given out yesterday by the Bryan League of New York, in which it was announced that while the league was doing all it could for the rest of the ticket, it was opposing the election of Mr. Hearst. I immediately wired Willis J. Abbott protesting against the use of my name by any organization in opposition to Mr. Hearst."

When his attention was called to the speech of Secretary Root at Utica last night, in which the secretary denounced Hearst in unmeasured terms, declaring at the same time that he was expressing the sentiments of President Roosevelt and by Mr. Roosevelt's authority, Mr. Bryan said:

"It seems to me that the republicans in New York must pe very badly frightened when they bring the president into the controversy, especially in the way they have."

$1,606,000 for Missions.

Buffalo, November 2.—The missionary conference of the Methodist Episcopal church has decided to fix the total sum to be appropriated for home and foreign missionary work for the coming year at $1,606,000, this being about the amount contributed by the denomination for mission purposes during the year ending October 31. Part of the morning session was given to a consideration of the educational movement maintained among the young people of the church by the missionary society.

Police Aid Strikers.

DELAYED TRAINS WERE THE RULE

Southern Railway Had Latest Train on Day.

No. 18 for Jacksonville Arrived in Atlanta Over Five Hours Late Due To an Accident to the Engine—Other Late Trains.

Prevailing conditions as to the arrival of trains in Atlanta yesterday were about the same as they were on Thursday. The different trains were marked up anywhere from something over five hours late down to ten minutes, while in several instances they were on time.

The Southern broke the record for the day, having one train 5 hours and 27 minutes behind time. This was No. 13 from Jacksonville, and the delay was due to a brokendown engine. The Atlanta and West Point had one train nearly 3 hours late, No. 34 from Montgomery, due at 7:30 o'clock, did not arrive until 10:20 o'clock. Other late trains varied from ten minutes up to an hour and a half.

Those trains that arrive in the Terminal station were later than those of the Union depot, for at this last station the delays in the main were minor.

A Store That's Always Extending Its Horizon

Nearly every day, week after week, we tell you about Muse's Clothing here in printers' ink.

What a grind it would be for us; and how uninteresting to you; if always it were along in the same rut.

Muse's has been putting Clothing onto men for over a quarter of a century, but Muse's is as keen and alive today, as enthusiastic as over the first sale made.

And the store that's not constantly extending its horizon soon gets into a rut.

Muse's has enriched the Clothing business of Atlanta because of its constant growth and development. And in our business of Clothing men, we have never once attempted a single project without measuring it with the full ability to carry it out.

Perception tells that it has given our garments marked distinction and indefinable style.

PRAISE FOR JUDGE MARTIN.

Irwin County Bar Passes Resolutions in Regard.

Irwinville, Ga., November 2.—(Special.) At a meeting of the Irwin county bar, at which Hon. Tom Eason, of Fitzgerald, presided, the following resolutions read by Judge L. Kennedy were passed, praising Judge J. H. Martin for his faithful services:

"Whereas, during the past fifteen or twenty years there has been a great increase in the population of Irwin county, and owing to the growth of the country, litigation has rapidly increased, and for many years the dockets, both civil and criminal, of the superior court of said county were crowded with litigation, and when Judge J. H. Martin came on the bench he found the court crowded with business and cases for trial.

"It gives us pleasure to say that during his administration, due to his energy and efficiency as a judge and perseverance in the trial of cases pending, that business, both civil and criminal, is well up and the dockets comparatively clear of important litigation.

"Judge Martin is no stranger here. He practiced law in this county, and was a regular attendant upon this court for more than a quarter of a century before his elevation to the bench, and it gives us pleasure to testify to his worth as a man, a lawyer and a judge, and we part with him reluctantly and feel that Irwin superior court will not be the same without him.

"In taking final leave of him, we wish him well and great success in whatever field of labor he may be called."

HARD TO SEE

Even When the Facts About Coffee Are Plain.

It is curious how people will refuse to believe what one can clearly see.

Tell the average man or woman that the slow but cumulative poisonous effect of caffeine—the alkaloid in tea and coffee—tends to weaken the heart, upset the nervous system and cause indigestion, and they may laugh at you if they don't know the facts.

Prove it by science or by practical demonstration in the recovery of coffee drinkers from the above conditions, and a large per cent of the human family will shrug their shoulders, take some drugs and—keep on drinking coffee or tea.

"Coffee never agreed with me nor with several members of our household," writes a lady. "It enervates, depresses and creates a feeling of languor and heaviness. It was only by leaving off coffee and using Postum that we discovered the cause and cure of these ills.

"The only reason, I am sure, why Postum is not used altogether to the exclusion of ordinary coffee is, many persons do not know and do not seem willing to learn the facts and how to prepare this nutritious beverage. There's only one way—according to directions—boil it fully 15 minutes. Then it is delicious." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

DID NOT TAKE ANY ACTION

On the Proposed Union of the Churches.

Birmingham, Ala., November 2.—The Alabama synod of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America, ended its session at East Lake today without having taken any action concerning those members who are dissenting from the plan of union between the Cumberland Presbyterian and the Presbyterian churches. The resolutions passed by the Cumberland synod, or the dissenting section, demanding the books, papers, moneys, etc., of that church, were not presented to Dr. W. B. Witherspoon, former stated clerk of the Cumberland synod or to the united synod, and the belief is expressed by prominent unionists that after due consideration of the whole matter those opposed to the union will finally agree to the wishes of the majority. The Cumberland synod adjourned yesterday.

Camphor Prices Soar.

New York, November 2.—The price of camphor has gone to a new high record—$1.05 in barrels and $1.05 1-2 in cases. The great bulk of the world's output comes from these places.

WAR PAINTINGS FOR MINNESOTA

State to Pay $31,000 for Six Decorative Works of Art.

Minneapolis, Minn., November 2.—The painting commemorating the charge of the Minnesota troops at the battle of Nashville in the civil war, painted by Howard Pyle, of Wilmington, Del., has just been hung in the governor's reception room. Mr. Pyle was present to superintend the work.

The painting cost the capitol commission $6,000 and is the most expensive work of art in the big reception chamber. It is on a canvas 6x8 feet, and hung in a panel just to the left of the main entrance.

The work depicts a battlefield, with troops charging through corn stubble on level, wet ground, with a hill on one side. Battle flags are in the fore. Clouds of powder smoke half conceal the enemy with whom the forward soldiers are clashing.

There are yet three pictures to be hung in vacant panels in the governor's reception room, each representing Minnesota troops in civil war battles, "Mission Ridge," "Gettysburg" and "Vicksburg." When the pictures are all hung, the one room will contain an investment of $31,000 in six paintings, as follows: "Father Hennepin at St. Anthony Falls," $3,000; "Treaty of Traverse Des Sioux," $4,000; "Nashville," $6,000; "Gettysburg," $6,000; "Vicksburg," $6,000; "Mission Ridge," $6,000.

SUIT BROUGHT FOR SLANDER

Fairbank Asks $50,000 Damages From Moran and Perkins.

Boston, Mass., November 2.—District Attorney John B. Moran, democratic, prohibition and independence league candidate for governor, and James M. Perkins, who was secretary of the Massachusetts board of commissioners to the Lewis and Clark exposition at Portland, Oreg., are named as defendants in a suit alleging slander, which was filed today in the superior court by Wilson H. Fairbanks, chairman of the board of exposition commissioners. Mr. Fairbank seeks to recover $50,000 damages both from Mr. Moran and Mr. Perkins. The action is based on the charges made by Moran and Perkins in connection with the expenditures of money appropriated by the state for the Oregon exposition.

The accusation against Fairbank was made by Mr. Moran, in a political address a week ago, and in subsequent speeches Mr. Moran charged Commissioner Fairbank with forgery, and criticized Governor Guild for neglecting to remove Fairbank, who is now a commissioner to the Jamestown exposition.

The charges made against Fairbank are under investigation by the attorney general and the assistant district attorney of Suffolk county.

CRAPSEY CASE BEFORE COURT

'Justice Will Be Done If the Heavens Fall," Says Clergyman.

New York, November 2.—The ecclesiastical court of review of the second department resumed today its hearing of the appeal from the decision of the diocesan court in the diocese of western New York, which convicted Dr. Algernon S. Crapsey, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church, Rochester, of heretical teachings.

Dr. Crapsey was convicted at Batavia, N. Y., last April. The appeal was first heard two weeks ago, and the court is now sitting to prepare its decisions. Two sessions were held today. Adjournment was taken to November 16, when, it is expected, a decision may be announced.

Today's sessions were behind closed doors. The members of the court later refused to tell the temper of that body toward Dr. Crapsey. One member, however, did say:

"We have determined that justice shall be done. Some of these men have come here repeatedly at large expense, and from a considerable distance. Justice, we are attempting to get, and justice we are determined to have, if the heavens fall. I do not know how the church will like it."

It was learned that when the court met two weeks ago it was determined to have each member submit an opinion in writing. This was done today, and the consideration of these documents occupied the attention of the court.

Copyright 1906 by Hart Schaffner & Marx

We are almost surprised, ourselves, at the enormous business we're doing. Seems as if every man in town wants to get into Rogers, Peet & Co. or Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothes--and visitors from other places are buying, too.

If you'll look at this clothing and compare it with what you see elsewhere, you'll understand why our sales are so large--and you'll add your patronage to the rapidly growing list.

You simply get more value for your clothes-money when you come here, that's all; better fabrics, better patterns, better styles, better workmanship and better fit than anybody else can give you.

And you know that you're buying all-wool clothes, with no taint of mercerized cotton--the labels guarantee that.

Suits, $15 to $40; Overcoats, $15 to $75.

SHOWS VASTNESS OF CANAL WORK

Quantities of Material to be Removed and Applied.

Commission Issues Circular for the Information of Bidders—Engineers Estimating Cost of the Canal at the Time of Completion.

Washington, November 2.—Some idea of the vastness of the Panama canal project is conveyed in a circular issued by the commission today for the information of prospective bidders for constructing the canal. It is stated that the quantities of material to be removed and to be applied to the work of construction are only approximate and the location and character of structures may be changed. It is hoped, however, that exact information will be collected by the five engineers who are charged to estimate a reasonable cost and time for completing the canal.

The circular states, under separate heads, the character of the work to be done. The amount of excavation is staggering. The summary shows estimated excavation and structural material as follows:

Colon section, 9,455,000 cubic yards; Mindi, 11,000,000 yards; Gatun locks excavation, 3,660,000 yards; concrete, 1,302,780 yards; steel gates, 29,230,000 pounds; Gatun dam, earth filled, 21,200,000 yards; Gatun regulating works excavation, 1,580,000 yards; concrete, 189,000 yards; sluices, 5,000,000 pounds; lake section excavation, 24,000,000 yards; Culebra excavation, 39,000,000 yards; Pedro Miguel excavation, 6,835,000 yards; Pedro Miguel lock excavation, 1,170,000 yards; embankment, 1,100,000 yards; back fill, 390,000 yards; concrete, 513,615 yards; cast iron, 732,000 pounds; steel gates, 19,500,000 pounds; Lake Sosa section, excavation, 1,680,000 yards; Sosa locks excavation, 1,430,000 yards; back fill, 950,000 yards; concrete, 992,800 yards; cut stone, 600,000 yards; brick, 14,000 yards; cast iron, 1,281,000 pounds; steel gates, 37,180,000 pounds; La Boca dam, 6,300,000 yards; Corosal-Sosa dam, 5,397,000 yards; Panama bay excavation, 8,528,000 yards.

THEATERS.

"The Lilac Room" Tonight.

"The Lilac Room," with Miss Amelia Bingham, will make its last appearances at the Grand this afternoon and tonight. All are agreed that Miss Bingham was never seen to better advantage. The strength of her acting, the excellent work of her supporting company, the handsome stage settings, together with the exquisite gowns worn by the star, have created no end of talk in local theatrical circles. Miss Bingham has ably sustained her reputation for being one of the most finished actresses on the stage.

"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall."

The romantic drama has never had a more artistic and talented interpreter than Miss Laura Burt, who will appear in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," at the Grand, Monday and Tuesday nights, with a matinee on Tuesday afternoon.

Those who attend the production will have an opportunity of seeing a play which has made as great an impression, according to report, as did "When Knighthood Was in Flower," from the pen of the same author.

The stage is indebted to Ernest Shipman for one of the most gorgeously mounted plays in this day of elaborate productions, and the manager is finding, so it is said, in the success of Miss Burt, ample payment for his desire to give her a production fully up to the demands of the theater of today.

Annie Russell as "Puck."

Direct from her metropolitan triumphs at the Astor theater, Miss Annie Russell comes to the Grand Wednesday and Thursday nights, with a matinee Thursday, appearing as Puck in Wagenhals & Kemper's beautiful production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

It was said in New York that this presentation of Shakespeare's comedy was unique in the history of the play in this country. In making the production the spectacular features usually associated with the play have been greatly augmented and enlarged upon.

In the role of Puck, Miss Russell is said to be a perfect embodiment of the merry household fairy, and that before this Puck's elfish tricks and loving mockery all cobwebs of dignity and chill are obliged to vanish.

"The Squaw Man."

An event of interest to the playgoing world is "The Squaw Man," which will appear at the Grand next Friday and Saturday nights. The play is described as a western romance, written by Edwin Milton Royle, and it gets its title from the status which public opinion on the Indian reservations or among the civilized tribes gives to a white man who marries an Indian woman. The Indian woman herself may be white save for a taint of aboriginal blood, which gives her "a head-right." She may be cultured, and all the rest of it, but her husband is "a squaw man" just the same, and not infrequently his white neighbors and full-blooded fellow citizens are prone to look down on him a bit.

"Tom, Dick and Harry."

Bickel, Watson and Wrothe are at the head of a spectacular musical comedy this year called "Tom, Dick and Harry." A. M. Woods presents these three remarkably clever comedians this season, and they have a much better opportunity of giving scope to their diversified talents than they have ever had before. "Tom, Dick and Harry" will be the next offering at the Bijou.

Bickel, Watson and Wrothe are beyond question the greatest musical buffoons and exponents of low comedy now before the public. They are versatile; they are vocalists, musicians and dancers, as well as being able to "read lines" with the best of them. Their humor is spontaneous and refreshing.

Baldwin-Melville Company.

Commencing next Monday night, November 5, at the Eldorado theater, the Baldwin-Melville Stock Company will begin a stock season of unusual excellence. Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights, Tuesday and Wednesday matinees, the beautiful American comedy drama, "At Piney Ridge," will be presented. Last half of the week a dramatization of Marie Corelli's famous novel, "Thelma," will be the bill. Matinees will be given Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday each week. Popular prices will prevail.

Two Killed by Derrick.

Philadelphia, November 2.—Two workmen were killed and five others injured by the collapse of a derrick at the building being erected for John Wanamaker to replace his present department store.

AS YOUNG INVENTOR

ATLANTA BOY WINS OUT

MONTFORD, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Morrison, is in New York, where he went to perfect a working model and to patent a recent invention of his own for which great things are predicted.

The invention is an improved form of cash register, and its promise is such as to have secured the substantial encouragement and financial backing of a company of thoughtful business men. They have sent young Mr. Morrison to secure the necessary mechanical assistance in making a working model of his device, and he is engaged upon it now.

MONTFORD MORRISON, Atlanta Boy Who Is Winning Success as an Inventor.

This invention is one of quite a number which owe their inspiration to Mr. Morrison, who is only 16 years old, and whose inventive faculty began to assert itself when he was 6. His inventive ideas are confined to no one particular line, but express themselves in a variety of devices, from a coffee pot to the cash register, on which he has been working for several years.

His success with the present enterprise is confidently awaited, and he will follow it up with the development of other devices already begun.

Y. W. C. A. OF GULF STATES.

Mrs. McD. Wilson Appoints the Committees.

Montgomery, Ala., November 2.—(Special.)—The opening exercises of the fourth annual session of the Young Women's Christian Association of the gulf states included an address by Rev. W. L. Walker, of Atlanta, and the appointment of committees by the president, Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, of Atlanta. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Rev. Neal Anderson, L. D. Dix, of the Young Men's Christian Association, and Mrs. J. W. Black, of the Young Women's Christian Association. Responses were made by Mrs. Wilson and others. The meeting will last over Sunday.

Charles E. Kinkaid, Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, November 2.—Charles E. Kinkaid, former United States consul at Manchester, England, and political correspondent for New York and San Francisco papers at Washington, died today, aged 41. He was prominent in Kentucky for many years, serving as Anderson county judge, as first railroad commissioner in that state, as private secretary to Governor Proctor Knott and in other capacities. For the past eleven years he has been with The Cincinnati Enquirer.

Saloonist Killed by Wife.

Hot Springs, Ark., November 2.—John Picchi, a well known saloon keeper, of this city, was shot and instantly killed tonight by his wife because it is alleged of jealousy. The couple had been separated for some days and met tonight for the first time.

Found Dead in Field.

Pittsburg, November 2.—The body of A. J. McMillan, 65 years old, a manufacturers' agent, said to be quite wealthy, was found today in a field near his home. That he had been robbed and murdered was evident, as his head was crushed and his pockets rifled of everything they had contained.

ATLANTA, GA., November 3, 1906.

No; the trusts needn't fear lynching. They've had too much rope already.

Money talks with the Georgia farmers, or—clear the big road for the home-haul!

Certainly, that muddy New York campaign was enough to make the president take to the woods.

So the president, by proxy, takes a whirl in the New York campaign, where it's "Root, hog, or die," now.

It goes that the Castellane may have to fight a number of duels. But will there be enough of him left?

Shouldn't be surprised to hear the president mildly reminding Mr. Carnegie that he's something of a talker himself.

Some of the New York politicians have been induced to stop running long enough to do a little swearing on the stand.

They wreck railroads by law in Louisiana. But a rise in stock by the dynamite method is not likely to become popular.

The United States supreme court won't let "thru" pull through. Justice isn't as blind as the spelling reformers thought for.

The gold-diggers of Alaska have dispatched a representative to Washington to say that they want something else beside the earth.

The president will kill his own Thanksgiving turkey this trip, and incidentally gain further information as to the tall timber business.

Edison says he will soon have opera-producing records that will hold us at the phonograph forty minutes. Not all of us—if the roads are good and the spirit willing!

Mr. Justice Brewer says forensic oratory has passed away from the courtroom. Exactly. And the time thus saved is usually devoted to long-winded objections to justice.

Kentucky has a "Rip Van Winkle" case on hand. Man there has been asleep twelve years, and feels too good to quit. Didn't know the Kentucky brand had any knock-out features to it.

Sir Thomas Lipton is now in the good old Irish town of Boston, and The Globe, of that city, calls him "Lipton, the Unlimited." But the rumor that Sir Lipton is here to organize another beef trust is certainly the limit.

Professor Frankenfield, of the Washington weather bureau, says "we'll know more about the weather after a while." This is encouraging. If we don't they might as well strip the rainbows to ribbons, and quit trying to dodge lightning.

As the president is determined to take the rifle in his own hands, he will be denied the pleasure of making the interesting entry in his journal—"While we were scouring the woods for our dinner, 'Uncle' Billy Sprawls called at our temporary headquarters and left a fine, fat turkey on our table. 'Uncle' Billy, though suffering somewhat from rheumatism, is an honor to his country. Call again, 'Uncle' Billy!"

NOT A QUESTION OF COST, BUT OF REASONABLE PROFIT.

We publish elsewhere today an interesting communication sent to The New York Herald by Mr. Sterrett Tate, replying to a quotation from The Herald to the effect that as cotton can be grown at five cents per pound, it is unreasonable for the producer to expect more than ten cents for it.

Mr. Tate successfully ridicules the proposition that cotton can be grown at five cents a pound and shows that ten cents is too low for the producer to make the reasonable margin of profit to which he is entitled.

It is a very simple matter for a newspaper a thousand miles away from the fields to tell the cotton producer what it costs per pound to raise cotton, but when reduced to its last analysis advice from the neighborhood of Wall street is of no more value to the average cotton farmer than would be the opinion of the average cotton producer to a New York speculator who might be seeking evidence as to the latest movements of the Parisian bourse.

Every item entering into the production of cotton has vastly increased during the past few years. It costs more to buy land, fertilizers, stock, utensils, to pay for labor and to meet the expenses of living than ever before. The cost entering into the production of a bale of cotton today is almost double the cost of the making of a bale ten years ago.

While it is true that ten cents will perhaps meet actual expenses and give the producer and his family a living, it is not just for the world to expect the cotton grower to be satisfied with only actual living expenses.

The cotton grower is just as much entitled to a reasonable return on his effort, his energy, his time and his investment as the Wall street broker is entitled to his profit. What would Wall street think if the cotton producer should take the position that its brokers and business men should be entitled to no more than actual living expenses out of their business—and yet that is the position assumed towards the cotton growers by a great many people the world over.

What Wall street doesn't know about the cost of making cotton would fill a great many books.

In the meantime The Constitution again urges the cotton producers of the south to LET WALL STREET ALONE, and to make its arrangements independent of advice received from that direction.

The secretary of the Mississippi division of the Southern Cotton Association was right when he warned the producers of the south against the bear movement emanating from Wall street, and it is noticeable that it comes this year from some of those who only a year ago were coddling the farmers of the south with the view, evidently, of working into their confidence to bag big game this year.

Notwithstanding this, cotton has crossed the eleven-cent limit, and still stands above ten, pointing to a return to eleven.

Every bale of cotton now on the market is worth at least eleven cents and if marketed sparingly will bring it!

Death of Mr. High.

In the death of J. M. High Atlanta loses a man who for years has been one of the foremost figures in its commercial life, and who has done as much as any one to place the city in the splendid position it now occupies in all lines of business.

Though it was with the dry goods trade that he was most closely identified and to which his personal efforts were mainly directed, still the influence of his strong personality was felt in every movement looking to the upbuilding of the city, and his fellow-workmen in the task of keeping Atlanta at the front knew well the value of his sound opinions on all questions of business.

Mr. High's growth in a business way was coeval with that of Atlanta and with him is removed one more of those sturdy characters who found Atlanta a struggling village and made of her the city that she is today. Mr. High will be missed and Whitehall street will not be alone in losing at his death.

A Mistaken Idea of Peonage.

Georgia would no more permit or tolerate a system of involuntary servitude, or even individual cases of peonage, than would Massachusetts. There is no state in the union in which individual liberty is surrounded with more safeguards than here, where private employers of convict labor have been haled into court and punished, when it could be shown that they had detained even criminals beyond the extent of their legal sentence.

With Georgia leading her sister states in upholding and enforcing the law, it would be well for the federal government to go slow in the matter of seeking to ferret out imaginary cases of violation of a law intended to apply to a class of cases which have no parallel in this section of the country!

The truth of the matter is the law against peonage was primarily intended to prevent the importation across the border of a Mexican system which legalizes the holding in involuntary servitude of a laborer under contract.

No such system as that exists in this part of the country. There seems to have been a mistaken idea given currency regarding a certain Georgia law which seeks to prevent negro, and white laborers, for that matter, from failing and refusing to give an adequate return for money and supplies advanced upon the strength of their promise to perform certain services. This law simply puts such laborer on notice that he must perform the services for which the price, sought by him, has been advanced, or answer to the courts for obtaining money under false pretenses.

That is all there is to it. It seeks to hold no one in service against his will, and in no sense can it be considered peonage.

Where High Wages Hurt.

Ordinarily there is no doubt of the fact that one would be considered out of his head, perhaps almost mentally deranged, to talk about the danger of high wages. But there are exceptions to all rules, and often important ones. There is one case, at least, in which high wages have created a dangerous problem for the people of the south, especially in the cities.

That exception is this: There is no doubt that when the negro earned 80 to 90 cents a day, as was the case a few years ago, he was, as a general proposition, much better off than he is today. Likewise the people for whom and among whom he worked got better and more satisfactory results. It is not so much a question of dollars and cents; it is a question of the general good of the community. Now that wages have been advanced to $1.25 and even $1.50 a day, the result is that people who depend upon negro labor not only get less of it, but it is of poorer quality. The negro who, working two or three days, makes enough to support him for the entire week, and becomes an idler and a loafer for the balance of the time, is a menace to any community. He resorts to the dives and becomes a possible, if not an actual, criminal. There is no doubt that the negro was happier and far better off at the lower wage rate where he earned all he needed and, what is all-important to the community, kept at work—a panacea for discontent and a preventive of crime.

Here is to be accounted for at least a large proportion of the scarcity of labor. For instance, suppose there are 100,000 negroes in Georgia who formerly worked six days in the week at 80 cents, but who now work only three days at $1.25 to $1.50. What is the result? Why, 100,000 laborers are withdrawn from the field for half the time; in other words, Georgia has lost through the increase in wages 50,000 laborers. We do not pretend to say that these figures are exact; they are simply illustrative; they give some idea of the condition and its extent. If the negro's condition were bettered there would be no cause for complaint, but the truth is, it is worse. By giving the negro a taste of higher wages it is apparent how the condition of labor scarcity has been created.

But the remedy. We cannot reduce the wage scale and thereby get the negro back to permanent and continuous labor. There is only one thing that will, in part, meet the situation—a vigorous enforcement of the vagrancy law. If the law is insufficient to deal with this problem as it exists, it should be amended so that it will reach the idler and loiterer wherever he may be found. Three days of work should never be taken as an acceptable excuse for three days of loafing.

A Negro's Protest.

The better class of negroes in the south are heartily protesting against the false and incendiary advice proffered by their misguided alleged friends at the north, knowing that it only confuses and further complicates the issue.

Those intrenched in the bomb-proof security of distance—and they are steadily growing fewer in number—who, inspired by prejudice, or hampered by ignorance of really existing conditions, seek to inflame the southern negroes to retaliatory action, are the worst enemies of the negro race, and their advice is resented by the very people they ostensibly seek to aid.

Southern leaders of the negro race, with commendable patience and foresight, have warned the members of their race in times of sporadic outbreaks and public disorder, that any attempts at reprisal or revenge would be fatal; that their safest and surest protection is in the friendship of the dominant white people of the south and in the uniform maintenance of the law.

Some northern fanatics seem slow to recognize this truth, and the advice does not coincide with their views or purposes. Still the number of these is growing encouragingly fewer.

In a well considered and, in the main, sane editorial on the race problem, Editor B. J. Davis, in The Atlanta Independent, vigorously takes issue with the long range critics and with the negroes who have hastily departed from the southern homes for good reasons and become the harshest critics of the south. He avows that every such attack hurts the whole race in the south.

If the end so much desired is to be achieved, it must be done through wisdom and conservatism, and the sooner the flannel-mouthed negro agitator at the north is quieted the better it will be for the race as a whole.

NEGRO EDITOR RESENTS NORTHERN NEGRO TALK

B. J. Davis in The Atlanta Independent.

EVERY abusive article or political blunder made in the north by our friends, only makes our burdens heavier and days darker. The southern white man is a human being and would be less than a patriot and unworthy of the proud heritage he wears if he did not hit back at those who belie his traditions and slander his native heath. It makes no difference whether the southern white man's traditions and achievements come up to the ideal of the other fellow or not, he has the same right to glory in his progress the other fellow has. Let our friends north who really desire our uplift substitute reason and moderation for abuse and vilification in handling the problem up for solution. Let us count up the cost to ascertain our profits.

What have we gained by the flight of any negro leader from the south to the north? Has a single negro leader who fled from the south to the north added anything tangible to the national life or our racial greatness? But has not each of them invariably sunk into insignificance just as soon as the people got tired of their threadbare story of martyrdom to the cause of liberty. Nine cases out of ten the colored man who flees from the south to the north by "force," as he puts it, has no real cause for flight, and not more than one white man in the community has told him to take up his bed and walk. The same injunction is often sternly read to objectionable white characters in any southern community.

We had as well come up to the hicklog, the real worth and character of the American negro will be measured and valued by the southern article; and its standard will not be any higher in character than the estimate placed upon our usefulness as citizens in the communities where we live by our white neighbors. The northern agitator may deny this axiom, but its proof remains indestructible, and is every day demonstrating that a race is like an individual and cannot rise any higher in the national life, and contributes no more to the national growth, than the estimate placed upon its worth in the community where it lives by its neighbors. The thing for us to do, is to make friends with the people who will be called upon to appraise our worth as men and women. And if our northern friends cannot help us to reach this end, their interference will prove far more hurtful to our national growth than helpful.

AS TO THE COST OF COTTON.

A Correspondent Riddles the Five-Cent Proposition.

The following letter to The New York Herald explains itself:

New York, October 29, ....—Editor Herald: One of the news agencies publishes an article in which they quote from your valuable paper as follows:

"All fair minds agree that 10 cents in the country is a very remunerative return for the product, * * * that is, so long as the market price per bale is 100 per cent above the average cost of production. Ten cents is easily that."

I venture to call your attention to this publication as being erroneous and misleading. I judge it is intended to convey the idea that at 10 cents for cotton in the country, the planter is netting 5 cents per pound. I do not know who your informant is on this subject, and I do not write ...s article with a view to criticizing or getting into controversy, but simply to put you right and suggest that you make such investigation that will give you the facts in the case. The last three crops have totaled in value to the south close to $1,891,500,000, but the net profit was not near one-half of that amount, though the average price in 1903-04 was 12.42 cents per pound; in 1904-05, 9.11, and in 1905-06, 11.29—average for the three years 10.9 here in New York, which would probably make the average easily over 10 cents in the country. The crop of 1903-04 was very small, being only 10,011,000 bales, and probably cost more than any previous crop that has been raised. The next season, 1904-05, the yield was 13,565,000 bales, and owing to the good prices of the year before, this crop was raised at a great expense, as every effort was put forth in the way of fertilizer and good cultivation, to bring forth the best possible yield and with the enormous crop the average price proved to be 9.11. Last year, season of 1905-06, the same effort was made for large acreage, heavy fertilizing with fine cultivation, but the seasons were against the crop and the yield was comparatively small, only 11,346,000 bales, but the average price was 11.25 New York basis. In your statement that 10 cents per pound gives the planter 100 per cent profit you evidently overlook the fact that the price of picking alone is from three to four times what it was a few years ago. The prices being paid range from 50 cents per hundred pounds, which is considered very cheap, up to $1 per hundred pounds, where people are rushed to save the staple. We are advised that there is a great scarcity of labor in the western part of the belt; they are demanding $1 per hundred pounus all over that country for picking. At such prices housemaids and washerwomen from the cities are glad to go to the country for a month's work. It takes 1,500 pounds of seed cotton to make one 500-pound bale of lint cotton, therefore you have a cost of $15, or 3 cents per pound lint for picking, at the rate of $1 per hundred, before the cotton gets out of the field. The lowest calculations of the cost for raising cotton the last two seasons has been from 7 to 8¼ cents, therefore 10 cents that the farmer receives in the country gives him only a small profit. On fifty bales of cotton at 10 cents per pound he makes $500 to a.00, and if your readers will stop to think how much labor it takes to make fifty bales you will realize that there is a very small income, as it ordinarily takes four plows with twelve to fifteen chop and hoe hands to raise a crop of fifty bales with the necessary corn and fodder to take care of the live stock for the coming year. You can easily substantiate the figures I have given you and the statement I have made, and I think that as you wanted to do justice to probably 15,000,000 of people who are interested direct in the cotton business, it would be worth while looking into the case before setting a limit of price, as a 100 per cent profit basis, which would at the present ruling prices of all the necessities of life, yield but a limited livelihood.

Reid Honored at Dundee.

Dundee, Scotland, November 2.—The freedom of the city of Dundee was today conferred on Whitelaw Reid, the American ambassador. In the course of his speech, thanking the municipality, the ambassador, referring to the relations between the United States and Great Britain, said the statesmen of either country had no higher task than to preserve those relations. When it was remembered that nearly one-third of the entire trade of New York and nearly half the whole of the United States was with the British empire, all would recognize that there were billions of reasons for maintaining and perpetuating the present cordial relations.

With Makers & Lovers of Literature

A CRITIC has written a novel! Miss Mary Moss, who is the daring critic-author, has written something worth while in fiction, and yet her work has features to it which are really laughable, and which one would imagine she certainly would have overcome because of her critical work in the world of literature.

She puts a certain kind of unreality into the characters of her book, which does much toward spoiling an otherwise excellent literary production.

For example, whoever heard of a young husband getting so far away in a short time from the tenderness of the honeymoon season as to speak thus to his wife:

"Don't you realize you are no match for me? When it comes to brutality, I can always lay the lash over your back, and bring away a bit of the skin. Words, dear, flock at my bidding. I can see in a flash where to hit and hurt—the place to draw blood. I could even come to enjoy punishing you. There is a cruel pleasure in seeing you turn white."

How inappropriate the word "dear" in the heart of the above silly harrangue—and how unlikely that it was used. The entire book is full of just such contradictions, and because of it Miss Moss is being given the laugh by other critics, and especially by those over whom she has so long held the whip.

But it is unjust to judge her work too harshly, for aside from this she has a story full of action and strong with vital and virile situations.

A very interesting discussion has been going the rounds recently looking into the details of the extent to which authors in the preparation of novels really "live out" in advance the life of the characters portrayed.

That there are a few authors who go down into the very life of the people's they portray and get in touch with their speech and habits by actual living is true, but the great mass of writers create their characters out of their imagination and then fit as nearly as possible habits and language to certain conditions of everyday life.

A strong point was brought out by a St. Louis paper claiming that no truly great novel depicting times or personalities had ever been written where the author had not delved down into the conditions and actually lived the life of his leading character! Such a condition in the literary world would be productive of a higher class of literature—but there is little hope of its ever becoming a universal custom.

Mollie Elliott Seawall, who has just returned from a trip to Europe, probably described the matter in the tersest and most commonsense way when she said:

"You ask if I live in the characters I portray, and how I set them into story action. I do not live their lives. My characters have a way of dumping themselves upon me—once I have thought out the plot of a story—exactly like a lot of relations come upon a visit. I have to do the best that is possible for them. While they are with me, they absorb me, and unless I allow each character fair play, it proves to be sawdust. I cannot explain how a story is born. You must remember, as Amile says, 'The beginning of all things is a mystery.'"

POINTED TIPS FROM A CRITIC'S QUIVER

Frances Hodgson Burnett is to have a new book out soon, which is to run serially in The Century. It is called "The Shuttle," and as the shuttle flies back and forth weaving, she carries the reader behind the scenes and lays bare the inner secrets of the lives which are weaved by the Almighty hand of God as he works the Loom of Life. It is said to be a story that in some points burns with warmth and kindles peculiar feelings in the heart.

When Owen Johnson's "Max Fargus" appeared it was harshly criticised by the most of the critics. But a few dared to brave the adverse opinion of the many, and the entire press is now saying it is good. A wonderful change of front—and brought about by the determined stand of a few good critics. The book is selling well. It is a little "raw," but is true to life and can do no harm.

Monopoly along all lines is the slogan today, and the theatergoing public suffer because of the theatrical "trust." A similar condition to that now existing in America is said to have been in vogue in England between the years 1660 and 1840. Mr. Watson Nicholson has gone over these troublous times through which the English stage passed in a book just published, called "The Struggle for a Free Stage in London." The book will be at all book stores about the 10th of November.

"The Roosevelt Bears," by Seamour Eaton, has just been published in book form by the author. This fascinating and captivating children's story is sure to be a winner this year.

New Orleans is always interesting in all departments of its life. The story by Harris Dickson, "Gabrielle: Transgressor," is laid in and around New Orleans during the colonial days of the city. It is as good a book as "The Black Wolf's Breed," which is saying a good deal for the merit of the work.

Some critics and writers are comparing the basic situations of Harben's "Ann Boyd" to similar conditions in Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter." One writer has jokingly called attention to the fact that the "n" in Mr. Harben's name stands for "Nathaniel" and wishes to know if he has inherited with the name the gift of the famous author.

"Mr. Dooly" has out a book called "Dissertations by Mr. Dooly." In the opening of the book he endeavors to tell something about heroism, and here is how he succeeds: "Annyhow, what is heerolsm? If a man stops a runaway team that is dhraggin' an empty milk-wagon into a ditch he's not a hero. He's a fool. Th' line is lightly dhrawn, annyhow. A hero is often a succissful fool, an' a fool is an unsuccessful hero."

FRESH CUT LEAVES.

Three stories for the children:

"The Roosevelt Bears," by Eaton. No children's story has taken better than Seymour Eaton's "Roosevelt Bears," which has been run by various newspapers all over the country in serial form. The book carries all the illustration which accompanied the newspaper stories and has additionally several full-page illustrations in colors. The travels and adventures of "Teddy B." and "Teddy G." are full of human interest and amusing situations and will delight the children. (Seymour Eaton, Philadelphia.)

"Mountain Land," by Robert W. Chambers. A children's story written in simplest possiule language, which tells interestingly about the adventures of a party of young folks in "Mountain Land." Illustrated and printed in large type. (Appleton & Co.)

"Our Army for Our Boys," by Tudor Jenks. A brief story of the organization, development and equipment of the American army. Illustrations in color showing the exact dress and equipment of the soldier in all departments of life. Written in plain, easily understood language and technical terms explained. (Moffatt, Yard & Co., New York.)

"The Complete Beauty Book," by Elizabeth Anstruther. The whole subject of the value and detail data of the beauty is summed up in the words of the introduction, which says: "Beauty is a matter of health, dress and winsomeness." The entire work is sane and sensible and full of timely advice. (Appleton & Co.)

"Liberty, Union and Democracy," by Barrett Wendell. This work is practically four addresses. The first deals in the national characters of America, sympathetically and understandingly detailed. Having taken this step the author is prepared to divide the national life into three distinct substances. First, of liberty as the groundwork of our life. The second dealing with union as a necessary follower and preserver of liberty. And the third of democracy as the heart and keynote of it all. Regarding democracy he truthfully says:

"From the very beginning of our national existence. . . .our third national ideal, that of democracy, has been vigorous. But since the civil war it has become so much more insistent than it used to be that it sometimes seems to have taken on a form almost new." It is a good book for the student, but too heavy for the average reader to wade through. (Charles Scribner.)

"Historia Amoris," by Edgar Saltus. Whether or not Edgar Saltus has told the whole story about the history of love is hard to tell. Love goes to so many places, lives under so many forms, does so many strange things—and withal is so erratic and charming that the task of telling its life history is one well nigh impossible.

But in his own charming way, full of wit and brilliant surroundings and situations, Mr. Saltus has at least told part of love's history. And it makes interesting reading. He has allowed himself to mix fact and fiction, and the result when served up as he serves them makes a tempting dish. (Mitchell Kennerly, New York.)

"Queen of the Rushes," by Allen Raine. A romance of the Welsh country, with very little to commend it to the reader save as a picture of life in the Welsh land and amongst the Welsh people. (Jacobs, Philadelphia.)

"Are You a Bromide," by Gelette Burgess. A silly piece of nonsense. Intended to be funny, but lacking in the essential qualifications. (B. W. Huebsch, New York.)

"Beached Keels," by Henry Rideout. In the volume are three sea tales that are good, very good. They taste of the salt air and the characters are typical and fill you with a desire to get closely acquainted with them. The author displays a keen sense of humor, fine portrayal ability and the happy faculty of telling a good story without stretching it out too long. The three tales given could each have easily made a whole book. But they are condensed, only the rich parts given with no frillings. Captain Christy, Mr. Rideout has created a character who will live in literature. (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

ROMANCE ISLAND, by Zona Gale. All humanity lives part of their life on "romance island," and this fact has been recognized and utilized by Zona Gale to make the groundwork of a good healthy love tale. It blooms with the beauty of a rose, and is tinted by the hot kiss of passion. It does not hesitate to lead the reader into close proximity with good and evil, but it does so in a chaste yet salty manner. This fact will lead some to give the book a dash of cold water, yet it simply tells of life and that is not always a clean and pretty condition. There is nothing great and nothing extra good about the story. It is simply a charming love story. Olivia Holland, the sweet and fetching girl heroine of the book, is never after her introduction to the reader anything save "Olivia." Everybody calls her "Olivia" and into the reader's heart "Olivia" climbs, and it is not anticipating too much to think when once there she is there to stay. (Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

THE KING'S DIVINITY, by Dolores Bacon. The author of that very good story, "The Diary of a Musician," has taken things more solemnly and seriously in this new work. In fact, the story is exceedingly complex in its surroundings and make-up. The heroine is a well bred American girl who is heir to a European throne. She is terribly hampered in her daily living and advancement, however, by the fact of having some degenerate ancestry. This part of her kinship manages to spoil all her well laid plans at their vital points. The author has probably pressed this point of his plot too hard, for the reader can but feel sore after continued disappointments by the trampling upon of the heroine whose personality has readily won the love and admiration of the hearts of the reader. And not only in worldly affairs do her trials and troubles follow her, but when the time comes for the "running of Love's little stream," the poor little "streamlet" has stormy, almost times. And again here the reader is exasperated by the author's continued stressing of the wrong side, and makes the heroine to suffer. But it turns out happily in the end. To tell the end would spoil the tale. (Henry Holt & Co.)

THE CRUISE OF THE FIREFLY, by Edward S. Ellis. Here is a real good, live story for boys and girls. It tells of fishing and racing and children's good times—and also in the middle shows of some bad times that will make the young reader angry with some and sympathetic with others. But the boy and girl of the story around which it weaves the young reader's heart, finally after many pleasures and some trials, come out on top. The night scene on a river where the little boat "Firefly" runs into the story, is good for a time of enjoyment for old and young. This is strictly a plain, human interest story for boys and girls. (John C. Winston Co.)

Success of the Movement Is Now Assured.

Banks of the City and Many of the Prominent Business Houses Have Not Yet Reported Their Subscriptions to the Fund.

At a meeting of prominent merchants held in C. C. Hanson's office in the Candler building yesterday afternoon it was assured that Atlanta is to have an up-to-date board of trade, where all market quotations will be accessible to members and associate members, the associate members being non-residents.

There were some twenty prominent gentlemen present at the meeting, all members of committees appointed to solicit subscriptions to the exchange.

All reports were favorable and Secretary Charles Daniel announced that there was over $2,500 in hand. The cost of maintaining the exchange is placed at $4,500 a year, and the fact that many of the important committees have not reported make it certain that the full amount will be in hand in a few days.

The meeting was more or less informal, and other than the reading of reports little was done. However, during the informal conversation it was agreed that the exchange should be made a place where business men could meet and spend a social hour in the discussion of various deals. While no location for the exchange has been agreed upon, it was the sense of the meeting that it should be located at some place where luches could be served, so that a man coming in at 12 o'clock to look at the quotations could also lunch in or near the exchange.

It was decided to hold another meeting at 4 o'clock next Friday afternoon, by which time all details will doubtless have been perfected.

NINETEEN WERE RELEASED.

Twenty-Three Brownsville Negroes Are Still Held in Tower for Trial.

Nineteen of the forty-two Brownsville negroes held in the Tower under indictment charging them with the murder of County Policeman J. L. Heard were on yesterday released on their personal bonds upon the order of Judge Roan, Solicitor General Hill consenting to the order in behalf of the state.

Altogether fifty-nine Brownsville negroes were indicted for the murder of Policeman Heard. Of these Alex Walker was tried, convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment, twenty-three are still held in the Tower, nineteen were released on personal bonds yesterday and sixteen have never been apprehended.

It is not probable that the remaining defendants will be put upon trial until the constitutionality of the act creating the office of inspector of roads and bridges—commonly termed county police—is determined by the state supreme court, and any federal question raised by attorneys for Walker is determined by the courts of last resort, state and federal.

The negroes released yesterday were James Harden, S. N. Morris, John Brown, Charles Jackson, D. Thomas, Mitchell Jackson, Dave Dozier, Sam Loyd, George Wyatt, Lock Stephens, F. L. Stephens, Will Dickens, J. H. Bailey, Sam Jones, Will Owens, Wesley Logan, Jim Allen, John W. Howlin and J. F. Donehoo.

Those held in the Tower are Jessie Jackson, Ben Stephens, Marion Peters, Lorenzo Parks, James Allen, Milton Peters, Genie Johnigan, Tom Wilhight, J. B. Hinfon, Jim Peters, Anderson Bates, Porter Collins, Henry Griggs, Arthur Arnold, Ed Parks, John Morehead, Smith Morehead, George Morrow, Willie Williams, Robert Young, Lon Jackson, O. A. Woodson and Major Collins.

Wilmington, N. C., November 2.—(Special.)—In Sampson county superior court, this afternoon, a judgment was secured against William A. Johnson, administrator of the late W. N. Peden and the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company for $36,768.60. Suit was brought by the heirs of W. N. Peden, who contended that Johnson had failed to account for the funds taken in by him as administrator. The case had been on the docket for four or five years.

COMMITTEE OF 25 ACCEPTS REPORT

Two Subcommittees Will Be Named Today.

These Committees Will Take Steps to Secure a Lot and Ascertain the Cost of Building the Auditorium and Armory.

The committee of twenty-five, which has in hand the building of an auditorium and armory, met yesterday afternoon to hear a report from the subcommittee on subscriptions and to take such further action as was deemed necessary.

The report of the subcommittee showed that the total amount of subscriptions was $268,000, which was $18,000 more than had at first been asked for.

Jack J. Spalding, chairman of the subcommittee, stated that his committee had, in addition to raising the subscriptions, applied for a charter for the construction company and outlined a plan for the organization of the company and for the final transfer of the property to the city.

Colonel Clifford L. Anderson and Sam D. Jones, members of the subcommittee, supplemented the chairman's remarks by saying that their committee had worked hard and had met with no trouble in securing the subscriptions.

Subcommittee Gets Bouquet.

On motion of Clark Howell, a resolution was adopted thanking the subcommittee for its good work and ordering that the report be accepted.

Mr. Spalding explained that the next step was to secure a lot, investigate plans and ascertain what the building was to cost. In the mean time the charter would be secured and the company organized.

Captain James W. English moved that the same subcommittee act as a steering committee and further perfect the plans of organization, and the motion was adopted.

Mr. Howell moved that two committees, of five members each, with Mr. Gray as chairman of both, be appointed, to select a lot and to confer with architects and secure information on plans and cost.

The motion was adopted with an amendment by Mayor Woodward that no site be considered that was not within half a mile of the center of the city.

Will Appoint Two Committees.

Chairman Gray announced that he would appoint the two new committees this morning.

As soon as the subcommittees have reports to make they will notify Chairman Gray, of the general committee, and he will call a meeting at once.

There was some discussion about more money being subscribed than was asked for, and Mr. Spalding explained that it made no difference how much was underwritten by the promoters, as the property would in the end only cost the city exactly what it had cost the company. If half a million dollars was subscribed, he stated, that would only reduce the assessments.

The meeting was enthusiastic and nearly every member was present.

OFFICIALS VISIT ATLANTA.

Superintendents of New England Railroads With Station Master Patterson Tour the City.

Some twenty superintendents and assistant superintendents of New England railroads who arrived in Atlanta from the north, left early yesterday morning for Richmond, which will be their next stop. The visit of these New England railroad men has become an annual affair and this year Atlanta was as far south as they went.

During their stay here many of the Atlanta officials called on the distinguished visitors and many pleasant acquaintances were made. Station Master J. D. Patterson, the personal friend of several of the visiting officials, acted as major domo during their stay here and carried the party to many of the places of historic and general interest. On their return, a careful inspection of the new passenger station was made and Station Master Patterson was highly complimented both on account of the appearance of the station and for the system of handling the many trains in and out of the new depot. In view of the fact that many of the visitors were officials having charge of the great South Station in Boston, in some respects acknowledged to be the greatest station in the world, this high praise for Mr. Patterson was the occasion of much pardonable pride in railroad circles. The "Yankee" officials expressed themselves as charmed with the beauty, progress and enterprise of Atlanta.

Second District Trustees.

The meeting of the trustees of the agricultural school for the second congressional district, as called by Governor Terrell, will be held in Abany on Monday, November 19, instead of November 10, as was erroneously stated yesterday. The trustees for the agricultural school of the third district will meet in Americus on the day following, Tuesday, November 20. At these meetings definite action will be taken in the matter of selecting sites for the new agricultural schools.

TEACHERS TO HOLD PRIMARY.

Dr. Harris, Secretary of State Board of Health, Makes Address This Morning.

The general monthly primary for all teachers in the city school will be held at the Boys' High school building this morning. As is usual at these sessions the outline of work for the coming month will be discussed by the teachers and also general methods of instructing.

In addition to the ordinary program, Dr. H. F. Harris, secretary of the state board of health, will make an address, devoted in the main to contagious diseases and their detection. This, it is hoped, will be very beneficial to the preceptors in that it will help them in discovering such diseases in time to suppress them. Dr. Harris will also give some views on hygiene. Courses in this are being taught in every department of the city schools and much interest on the subject is manifested by the teachers.

GEORGIANS INDICTED ON PEONAGE CHARGE

Federal Grand Jury Found True Bills Against Three Men Yesterday.

GERMAN IMMIGRANTS GAVE TESTIMONY BEFORE JURY

Indictments Follow the Visit of Charles Russell—Government Side Given by Gentleman Close to Mr. Russell.

As a result of the visit south of assistant Attorney General Charles Russell to investigate alleged peonage conditions existing in this state, the federal grand jury on yesterday returned five indictments against well known manufacturers.

Those indicted by the grand jury follow: F. B. Cole, Newnan, one bill; Jean Reinhold, two bills; H. L. Zeigler, connected with the Thompson company, manufacturers, two bills.

The grand jury remained in session several, days during which time the members listened to the testimony of some thirty German immigrants or more, who testified as to the alleged peonage, this evidence being supplemented by that of several government detectives who have been investigating conditions.

The Government's Contention.

On being asked for a statement in reference to his peonage investigation, Mr. C. W. Russell, the representative of the department of justice, declined to say anything.

"While I would like to oblige you," said Mr. Russell, "it is not within my province to talk for the newspapers. I must make my report direct to the department."

A gentleman, however, who is familiar with the investigation, and with the purpose of Mr. Russell's efforts, and who has been in close touch with Mr. Russell since the latter's visit to Atlanta, on being asked for a statement, said:

"Until a year ago, when the Clyatt case was decided by the United States supreme court, no exact and authoritative interpretation of the anti-peonage laws of congress existed; the lower courts differed about it, some claiming that state laws were necessary to create the condition of peonage. The definition of that condition was thus given on March 13, 1905, in the Clyatt case:

"What is peonage? It may be defined as a status or condition of compulsory service, based upon the indebtedness of the peon to the master. * * * But peonage, however created, is compulsory service, involuntary servitude. The peon can release himself, it is true, by the payment of the debt, but otherwise the service is enforced. A clear distinction exists between peonage and the voluntary performance of labor or rendering of service in payment of a debt. In the latter case the debtor, though contracting to pay his indebtedness by labor or service, and subject like any other contractor to an action for damages for breach of that contract, can elect at any time to break it, and no law or force compels performance or a continuance of the service. * * * We entertain no doubt of the validity of this legislation, or of its applicability to the case of any person holding another in a state of peonage, and this whether there be municipal ordinance or state law sanctioning such holding. It operates directly on every citizen of the republic, wherever his residence may be."

"Owing to the practice of certain dishonest farm laborers in the south, who hire themselves in the late fall in order to get kept through the winter, intending from the beginning to jump their contracts in the spring as soon as high wages are paid for cotton raising, there is a law of Georgia, punishing with fine and imprisonment as a common cheat any one who contracts to serve another and gets advances, intending at the time not to perform the service. In 1904 our Georgia supreme court held that this law does not violate the constitution of Georgia prohibiting imprisonment for debt, because its purpose was not to enforce a debt or contract of service, but only to punish an original intent to cheat—getting money under false promises or pretenses. Had it been intended to enforce a debt directly or indirectly, the court would have held that it violated the state constitution.

"It is said that this Georgia law, directed against a certain form of cheating by farm laborers, is sometimes used to accomplish the unconstitutional purpose of enforcing a debt or contract of service, where there is no original intent to obtain advances by a false promise to serve. Certain Germans and Swedes, now in Atlanta, not farm hands, but lately employed at Newnan and near there about lumber yards and about factories under construction, claim to have been held in peonage or involuntary servitude under the pretext of applying this law, although they were themselves cheated, as they say, into coming to Newnan to work in an imaginary furniture factory. They have been taken before the grand jury by the assistant United States attorney general, who has been sent to look after peonage matters.

First Move Made in the Case.

"It appears from The New York Tribune of October 21 that the first move of the assistant attorney general was to go before a New York grand jury, where he got an indictment against a licensed labor agent of that city named Schwartz, who had cheated other foreigners into going to Florida and other places in the south. The agency that shipped these Germans to Newnan has sent an affidavit of one Feder, which says, somewhat ungrammatically:

"'The true facts of the case is this:

"'We did advertise on October 1 in The New York Statts und Morgen Journal for men to work in a furniture factory. To each and every man who came in response to this ad we explanied in their own language in presence of witnesses that they came too late for this furniture factory job, but if tney wanted work as common laborers in yard of sash, door and blind factory, machine shop, foundry and other works of a similar nature—that work being common labor, at $1.25 per day and free lodging—we would send them there.'

"This is not only contradicted by all these foreigners, but is suspicious in omitting to state what 'furniture factory in Georgia' got the fifty men advertised for, who and where they are; and in saying that 'every man' who came was told he was too late.

"The most serious part of this matter for us is said to be that the labor agencies are driven to false representations and other trickery to get immigrants to come south, largely because of the reports about peonage practices made by the foreigners who come. It is said by one in a position to know that three separate contracts to send Italians to Florida fell through for that reason, although a Catholic prelate was somehow brought into the business to persuade the Italians to go. Of course, the foreigners write back to New York or to their own country.

To Benefit the South.

"It is claimed that the mission of the assistant attorney general is likely to benefit the south, if he succeeds in stamping out, with the aid of southern juries and southern public opinion, whatever peonage exists. He was selected, as stated in the official announcement given out in Washington, because he is a southern man and a democrat; for it was recognized that the president's duty of executing the peonage laws could not be effectively performed against the wishes of the better element of the south, because jurors, in spite of their oaths, are influenced by the general trend of public opinion about them.

"If peonage really exists to any considerable extent, then the reports of it that will go back and interfere with the much-needed flow of immigration, can only be stopped by stopping the peonage. The new south is clamoring for immigration, and it is argued that it had better take the chances in regard to the few dishonest farm laborers who deliberately obtain money with no intent to work, than to catch a lot of immigrants in a net that was not set for them, and that we might well repeal a law so likely to bring employers into conflict with the state constitution and federal statutes. Some other plan of preventing such cheating by farm hands might be devised.

"As the south needs immigrants, it ought to make them welcome and treat them well enough to draw them off from the accustomed western flow. Special inducements that are real, not fraudulent, should be held out to them; and the first of these, it is suggested, is fair and just treatment—giving them all their legal rights."

Made Happy for Life.

Great happiness came into the home of S. C. Blair, school superintendent at St. Albans, W. Va., when his little daughter was restored from the dreadful complaint he names. He says: "My little daughter had St. Vitus' Dance, which yielded to no treatment, but grew steadily worse until as a last resort we tried Electric Bitters; and I rejoice to say, three bottles effected a complete cure." Quick, sure cure for nervous complaints, general debility, female weaknesses, impoverished blood and malaria. Guaranteed by all drug stores. Price 50c.

WARRANT WAS WITHDRAWN.

Miss Bertie Owens Was Placed in Charge of Police Matron Sanderson.

The warrant against Miss Bertie Owens was withdrawn in Judge Puckett's court yesterday by the young lady's mother, Mrs. Hannah Owens, of 151 Simpson street. The girl was given to Miss Ruth Sanderson, the matron, for protection, and to provide a home for her.

On Thursday the mother swore out a warrant against her daughter for vagrancy. On the same night the girl was allowed to go free, upon giving a bond of $50. When the matter was brought up Mrs. Owens relented and consented to let her daughter stay in Atlanta, and live where the police matron had placed her.

The flames were discovered at 2:30 a. m. in hold No. 5, containing cotton, and for a time a serious conflagration was threatened. Firemen flooded the hold with water and confined the damage to that part of the ship.

CONSTITUTION PATTERNS
PRICE ONLY TEN CENTS

A TINY FEEDING APRON.

Little Miss Simplicity begins with a bib, but as soon as she begins to toddle about she graduates to an apron. The first apron must needs be rather complete, as the beginner in the use of the spoon is likely to spill things and the little dress must not be soiled with every repast. So a special feeding apron has been designed for the little one and mothers have found it very serviceable. This covers the wearer completely in front and even to the sleeves, so that tiny elbows which will get into the bread and butter need not be soiled. The apron fastens simply with a strap in back so that it is easily donned and doffed. Any apron stuff may serve as material. In the one size 1 yard of 36-inch material is needed.

DAUGHTERS CLOSE THEIR MEETING

Convention of U. D. C. Meets Next Year at Augusta.

Convention at Americus the Largest Held in Years—Wirz Monument Will Probably Be Erected at Andersonville.

Americus, Ga., November 2.—(Special.) The twelfth annual convention of the Georgia division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, adjourned at noon today, to assemble a year hence in Augusta.

The meeting just ended in Americus was a most enthusiastic one. In point of attendance, it was the largest held in a number of years, and the hundred or more visiting daughters were accorded most hospitable entertainment. The proceedings throughout were harmonious, and much important work accomplished.

At the morning session, the proceedings were devoted to amendments and revision of the constitution of the Georgia division. Each article was discussed separately, and several amendments adopted. Principal among these was a resolution to elect officers annually.

The Wirz Monument.

The birthday of President Jefferson Davis, June 3, was added to the list of memorial days, and the office of auditor created to examine the books of the treasurer.

Five hundred dollars annually was voted to President Richie, of Rabun Gap Industrial school, as compensation for services.

Mrs. John E. Donaldson, of Bainbridge, introduced a resolution to reconsider the decision of the convention, at the Thursday night session, upon the location of the Wirz monument, which, by a close vote, was to have been located in Americus. Mrs. Donaldson urged the patriotic women of the south to place the monument at its rightful place, Andersonville. Her resolution was adopted, and the location of the shaft will be definitely announced at the next meeting of the convention.

Colonel John E. Donaldson made a patriotic address, and paid a beautiful tribute to Captain Henry Wirz. He likewise thought the monument should be placed at Andersonville, the scene of Captain Wirz's labors and sufferings for the cause he loved.

Would Create Bad Feeling.

Rev. J. P. Wardlaw, pastor of the First Methodist church, was asked for an expression of opinion. Dr. Wardlaw argued that the sight of the Wirz monument ot Andersonville would forever create a wrathful feeling against those who erected it, and that it could almost be counted on as a certainty that every year, at the federal memorial exercises there, speeches would be made that would engender strife and open old wounds long since healed.

The question of location is still an open one, and will be determined at the Augusta meeting next year.

The subject provoked very animated discussion here, and was the principal topic at the session last night and again this morning.

Mrs. Lewis, of Quitman, chairman of the committee on resolutions of thanks, read a beautiful and touching tribute of appreciation in behalf of the visiting Daughters, thanking the local chapter, the ladies of Americus, and people in general who contributed to their entertainment.

GOSSIP AT THE CAPITOL

President S. Y. Jameson, of Mercer university, Macon, called on Governor Terrell at the capitol yesterday and extended him an urgent invitation to visit Mercer on Thanksgiving day and preside over the debate between Mercer and Wake Forest, N. C., which will deal and with the Monroe doctrine. Governor Terrell stated that on account of the meetings of trustees of the various agricultural schools he could not make a definite promise, but would be glad to do so if he found that he could spare the time.

The month was considered an exceptionally good one from the state librarian's standpoint.

Choice of Evils.

"People have asked a great many questions about how you got your money."

"Yes," answered the ex-boss.

"But you have managed to hold on to it and enjoy it."

"I have. Explaining how you got wealth isn't as bad as wondering how you let it get away."

LACK OF COAL AFFECTS MILLS

South Carolina Cotton Mills Cannot Get Necessary Fuel.

Spartanburg, S. C., November 2.—A serious coal famine, due to car shortage on the Southern road, is spreading over the entire Piedmont section, and unless immediate relief can be gotten there is danger of cotton mills and other power-using concerns of that section being compelled to close down, throwing thousands of people out of employment.

President Calvert, of the Drayton mills, says coal is needed by his plant now, and unless the orders outstanding can be filled in a week the mill will hardly be able to run.

The reason assigned for the existing condition is that the Southern road is declining to receive further shipments from the mines in Tennessee, for the reason that adequate facilities for handling the coal are not available. Thousands of cars are now tied up along their lines.

President McEowen, of the Spartanburg Railway and Light Company, is reported to be in dire straits, and may be forced to cut off part of the current tomorrow.

GREAT DOINGS IN FOOTBALL

Today Offers Many Interesting Gridiron Contests.

Tech Plays Auburn and Vanderbilt Tackles Michigan, the Results of Both Games Being Much in Doubt—Other Great Football Games.

WHERE THEY PLAY TODAY.

- Auburn vs. Tech, in Atlanta at Tech flats. Game called at 2:30 o'clock.
- Georgia Military Academy vs. Tech Scrubs.
- Vanderbilt vs. Michigan, in Ann Arbor.
- Sewanee vs. Tennessee, in Knoxville.
- Georgia vs. Mercer, in Macon.
- Davidson vs. Clemson, in Charlotte.
- Alabama vs. Mississippi A. and M., at Starkesville.

Today's games are of even more interest than those of last Saturday on account of the seemingly closely matched state of the different teams. Then another event makes the afternoon's play a thing to look forward to by the enahusiasts—the Vandy-Michigan in Ann Arbor.

From the various lines of talk handed out by the two coaches it appears that these elevens are in imminent danger of beating each other if such were possible. Yost fears the Commodores more than he does Pennsylvania and has been making very careful preparations for the contest. While he has discussed the possibility of defeat, McGugin discourses on the possibility of a victory. However, a few hours will end this talk about it.

To sum up the situation it appears that the southern college stands a better chance of victory than she did when the twain last met. Should Vandy win it would be the greatest thing in the history of any southern team, for to trim Michigan means a whole lot.

The Davidson-Clemson battle will be an excellent dope fountain from which will flow predictions on Tech's great Thanksgiving day game. The Yellow Jackets won over Davidson by a small score after a desperately hard battle, and if she wins today Tech will defeat Clemson as far as comparative scores go; these, however, are a very poor basis for judgment.

Doping Tech-Auburn Game.

Looking at the local game this afternoon from the figure standpoint, Auburn should win, but there are not many rooters who feel that the honors belong to anybody yet. The Tigers were held by the Alabamans to a much more satisfactory score than the Yellow Jackets were able to work out, but this does not necessarily mean that it is the prunes for the Atlanta team.

That Carolina game, like many of the others, promises to be close and interesting, as both have strong elevens, but the odds seem to be a little in favor of Davidson.

Sewanee is the favorite in the Knoxville battle, for the university bunch is below par this year. The Tigers have made an exceptionally good showing and comparative scores, the bum criterion, give them the decision. Maryville tied Tech, beat Tennessee, and Sewanee fixed the Yellow Jackets. There you are.

The red and black will have the pleasure of an easy win in Macon over Mercer. The Baptists are doing well considering their experience in the game, but are clearly outclassed today. Georgia has had a long rest, not having played a game in two weeks and in the eagerness for battle they will probably roll up an unusually large score today.

Alabama has not been heard from to any great extent with the exception of the Vanderbilt walkover, but the Starkesville event should be another hard fought contest with a goodly number banking on the Alabamans. Mississippi is not in the habit of turning out any too wonderful football aggregations, but it is reported that they are fairly strong and will fight the battle to a bitter end.

As far as the south is concerned this practically completes the programme for the week. These games will be pretty exhibitions as midseason form sizes the majority of the teams at this stage of the game.

'RANTANKEROUS FRIEND' DIES

William Shepherd Manning Figured in Famous Depew Letter.

Albany, N. Y., November 2.—William Shepherd Manning, an Albany lawyer who gained prominence in connection with the legislative insurance investigation, died suddenly of apoplexy at his home last night, aged 72 years. He was a native of Baltimore. Mr. Manning's name was brought into the insurance investigation by reason of his being mentioned in a letter addressed to Senator Depew, which was presented in evidence and in which Mr. Manning was spoken of as "Our Rantankerous Friend Up the River."

TECH'S STRONG FOE FOR TODAY

THE AUBURN TEAM WHICH, NEVER HAVING TASTED DEFEAT AT THE HANDS OF GEORGIA TECH, WILL TODAY AGAIN TRY CONCLUSIONS WITH THE HEISMAN SQUAD

AUBURN ELEVEN IN GOOD SHAPE

Team Arrived Last Night With Victorious Intentions.

Auburn Has Husky Set, Who Say They Will Fight to a Finish This Afternoon—The Yellow Jackets Appear to Be Outweighed.

Outweighed by about 10 pounds the Yellow Jackets wade into Auburn this afternoon with the hope of changing the past order of things and making a settlement for some of the bitter doses doled out by the Alabamans in football days now gone.

Maybe in prehistoric time some Tech team was so successful as to beat their opponents of today, but a look into a modern history book does not reveal anything other than a long string of Auburn victories, and for these the locals will fight hard to make amends. It is about time for the worm to bring himself around, and some have it that the performance will be witnessed this afternoon.

The Auburn team arrived at about 10:20 last night over a train due at 7:30 o'clock, and Coach Donahue and the hungry crowd partook of a light repast at the Terminal station before going to their hotel. The coach drilled the men through the streets as the last exercise of the day, and sent them to bed immediately.

The team is in good condition, and from all appearances somewhat heavier than the Yellow Jackets, anyway they are a plucky looking bunch as was the Davidson team. The whole crowd is sure of making a great fight this afternoon, and say they will put up the greatest game of their history.

Some of the players are of the opinion that the team outplayed Sewanee, and that it was only by mere chance that the game went wrong for them.

Amateur Rooters Here.

A goodly number of Auburn rooters accompanied the team, and will be on hand with the noise this afternoon. Besides the regulars, Coach Donahue brought Reynolds and Ware, sub ends; Harris and Watkins, backs, and Thaggard, tackle. The team will work today, as it did against Sewanee with the exception of Batson at right end in Ware's place, the last named playing in the battle with the Tigers.

The Alabama team is said to weigh on an average 165 pounds, but a view of the men makes one think it is a little heavier; so it is estimated that the weight is 170, and it is not thought that the figures are for wrong. Tech has lost about 13 pounds in Fittard and Snyder, the first coming 6 pounds under Luck, and Snyder 7 under Bell. This pulls the average down to about 160½ says Coach Heisman.

Luck is out on account of a badly injured knee that he hurt in a scrimmage with the scrubs an afternoon or so ago. At present he is in pretty bad shape, but it is hoped that he will round to next week, in time for Georgia, anyway.

Luck's absence tends to weaken the team, as does Bell's, and the running in of the new men is not considered to be a strengthening quality. Although their play may be all right, experience is what really counts.

Tech's condition is crippled to a degree, but notwithstanding they will do their best to win out this afternoon. The dope is all in Auburn's favor, that is in regard to past scores, but it is not thought that will bring an Auburn victory.

Coach Heisman opines that it will be a hard mill, and many are behind him in the thought.

W. R. Tichenor will referee, and ex-Captain Henry Phillips, of Sewanee, umpire. The line-up of the teams as given by the two coaches last night follows:

| TECH. | POSITION. | AUBURN. |
|---|---|---|
| Monroe | center | Davis |
| Henderson | left guard | Pickett |
| Snyder | right guard | Gantt |
| Fittard | left tackle | Holly |
| McCarty | right tackle | Fenton |
| Brown | left end | Hughes |
| Swet | right end | Batson |
| Wilkinson or McClure | quarter | Robert Davies (capt.) |
| Hightower | left half | Whitner (capt.) |
| Adamson | right half | Sparaman |
| | full back | Lacy |

GREAT GAME EXPECTED BY COACH HEISMAN.

Coach Heisman—"While I am not predicting a victory for Tech, the team will work hard for the game, and the contest will be fiercely fought throughout. Although the new men in the line-up are somewhat lighter than their predecessors, they are showing up nicely, and if Tech loses it will not be by a large score—or vice versa. I am looking for a great game."

TEAM MUCH STRONGER, SAYS COACH DONAHUE.

Coach Mike Donahue, of Auburn—"My team is a great deal stronger than it was when Auburn played Sewanee, and, though I do not make the statement that we will win, the game will be very close, and the team that scores at all will take the victory. The men are all in condition and will work hard to beat Tech."

CAPTAIN FRANK DAVIES THINKS CHANCES EVEN

Captain Frank Davies—"I consider the chances of the teams about even tomorrow afternoon, will not venture to say who will come out ahead. We have had to put in several new men on account of Luck's injury, and from other causes, but I feel sure they will perform all right under fire. The best we can do is to put up a game fight, and by doing so we hope to win."

SMALL SCORE VICTORY, SAYS CAPT. WHITNER.

Captain Whitner, of Auburn, is confident that his team will win. Said he: "I realize the fact that the game will be close and hard, but our team will win by a small score, though it will take hard playing to do it. The men are all in ship-shape with no injuries to amount to anything, and if Auburn does not gain a decision it will be a great surprise to me."

OFFICER DRUNK ON DUTY.

Policeman A. J. Ivy Found Drunk On His Beat on Forsyth Street Last Night.

Chief Jennings and Captain Jett, at 9 o'clock last night, discovered A. J. Ivy, a member of the police force, in a drunken condition while on his beat on Forsyth street.

The chief suspended Officer Ivy until the next meeting of the board of police commissioners, when he will be given a hearing. He had reported last to headquarters at 8:08 o'clock.

Mrs. Schwan Writes Card.

Mrs. Anna Schwan has written the following card to The Constitution in regard to a recent story:

Editor Constitution: I notice in your paper, under date of October 31, the report of a case which Mr. B. M. Brodie, a city policeman, made against me in the recorder's court. The account in the paper of the facts in connection with it is misleading and hurtful to me. I had paid Mr. Brodie all that I owed him up to the time I undertook to leave. He had been very disrespectful to me, and the matter had become so disagreeable that I determined to go as soon as possible. I regret exceedingly the necessity for the statement herein, but it is true that I had been divorced, and hence the impression which the article referred to conveys is more hurtful than it would otherwise be, though there is no foundation in fact for the allegations about my misbehaving. I did not believe when I had the difficulty with Mr. Brodie's family that I was required to pay rent after vacating his house. I had paid him every cent up to that time, and he sued me for an additional $3, claiming that he was entitled to thirty days' notice. His conduct is so utterly repulsive that I could not think of remaining in his house longer under any circumstances. The finding in the recorder's court was very unjust to me, because I had no counsel and had never appeared in that court before. Very respectfully,

MRS. ANNA SCHWAN.

Moroccan Hotel Burns.

Tangier, Morocco, November 2.—The hotel Francaise, a large establishment, and the only big Spanish commercial house here, was burned out last night.

TECH SCRUBS PLAY G. M. A.

Lesser Lights Play This Afternoon in Conjunction With Big Game.

The Tech scrubs and the Georgia Military academy team will play this afternoon, at Tech flats, the game to be in conjunction with the Auburn-Tech contest. In all probability the first half will be in the intermission between the two halves of the big game, and the last half after its conclusion, this necessitating the beginning of the afternoon's play at 2:30 o'clock.

The scrubs are coached by Assistant Tech Coach Joe Beane, while Professor Patterson, a Vanderbilt graduate, has charge of the prep eleven. The two are about evenly matched, and the going promises to be warm. The scrubs were beaten by Stone Mountain this year, but the Georgia Military academy has yet to go down in defeat; however, they have not met anything near as strong as the scrubs, and will have to fight hard for a decision this afternoon.

The line-up of the teams follows:

| SCRUBS— | | G. M. A. |
|---|---|---|
| Malnoit | center | Byrd |
| Means | left guard | Atkins |
| Henderson | right guard | Kupperbush |
| Barnwell | right tackle | Merrin |
| Amorous | left tackle | Griffin |
| Crane | right end | Forbes |
| Wilson | left end | Willingham |
| Vaughn | full back | Clarke |
| McClure | left half | Haughton |
| Smith | quarter | Whitely |

A PRACTICAL UNIVERSITY.

That's What The Constitution's Offer Furnishes for 1907.

A true university of these days is a collection of current magazines and an up-to-date newspaper. # UTES TO JOIN THE CHEYENNES

May Refuse to Return to Utah and Trouble Is Feared.

Sheridan, Wyo., November 1.—The Ute Indians, now almost 400 strong, and with 1,100 ponies, are still camped on Powder river, in Montana, 35 miles northeast of Moorhead. A messenger who arrived today at Arvada talked with Chief Unkaskis, who said:

"Snow comes, we go to see Sioux pretty soon. Cheyennes come not now."

A courier is momentarily expected at Arvada announcing the result of a conference between the Utes and Colonel Rodgers and Major Grierson. The general belief is that the Utes will refuse to accept any terms looking to their return to Utah.

A correspondent in the field denies positively the report that there has been a clash between the Cheyennes and the soldiers. Fort Keogh troops are now patrolling Tongue river valley between Birney and Ashland, and have not seen any Cheyennes. Colonel Augur left Birney today for Ashland. Reports of the burning of a ranch building at the "O. W." ranch, received here via Birney, are not credited, although it is known that Indians were in that vicinity. The Ute Chief Appar is reported deposed by his tribe because he favored a pow-wow with the troops. It is said he was supplanted by Black Whiskers and Red Cap, who favor union with the Cheyennes and offering resistance.

EDNA WALLACE HOPPER. LEW FIELDS.

"THE BEST DETECTIVE STORY IN A MONTH OF SUNDAYS," SAYS EDNA WALLACE HOPPER.

"I have read any number of books that I thought were good, but 'Blindfolded' is the first one that was 'too good.' I sat down with a copy to read a few chapters before lunching with some friends. Before I had read a dozen pages I had forgotten friends, luncheon and everything else, and I did not put the book down until I had read it through.

"I squared myself, though, with my friends by sending each of them a copy of 'Blindfolded,' and now they are unkind enough to say that they are glad that I forgot about the luncheon. They all say, and I agree with them, that 'Blindfolded' is the best detective story that has come out in a month of Sundays."—EDNA WALLACE HOPPER.

"THERE SIMPLY ISN'T ANY OTHER LIKE IT," SAYS LEW FIELDS.

"'Blindfolded' simply cannot be compared. The plot 'blindfolded' me until the last page of the book. It is the greatest combination novel and detective story that I have ever read. In fact, it is easy to say it is the best of its kind, because there simply isn't any other like it. The minute I finished reading it I started right in to read it the second time, and I cannot remember when any other book has been so fascinating and exciting as to make me want to do that."—LEW FIELDS.

For a narrative of adventure fit to make one sit stark, staring awake till cockcrow, for a tale of tantalizing and labyrinthine mystery, read "Blindfolded," by Earle Ashley Walcott. For mastery of mystery it would be hard to surpass this unusual story.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CHILDREN GIVEN TO MRS. BATTLE

Father Will Be Allowed to See Them Every Week.

By the terms of a consent decree agreed upon between counsel for the parties, the custody of the two minor children of Lawrence Battle and Mrs. Marie Allen Battle is vested in Mrs. Battle, and the father is accorded the privilege of visiting the children once per week, first giving three days' notice of his intention to do so to Mrs. Battle's counsel. Mrs. Battle is not permitted to remove the children from this state, unless the defendant, Lawrence Battle, shall attempt to see them or communicate with them while intoxicated, or seek to interfere with the mother's custody of them. Mrs. Battle will be permitted to take the children to New York to visit her brother, such visits not to exceed a month in duration each year.

Temporary alimony in the sum of $125 per month was granted Mrs. Battle, payment of which is to commence at once, and the defendant is to pay $1,000 on account of Mrs. Battle's attorneys' fees.

The temporary injunction heretofore granted by Judge Pendleton against Lawrence Battle was dissolved.

The petition of Mrs. Battle for total divorce and $50,000 permanent alimony, to which petition the defendant has filed a plea to the jurisdiction of the court, will not come up for trial until some eight months hence.

Chippendale, Sheriton, Heplewhite

A little furniture history will not be out of place with these furniture pictures---the reproduction of a Heplewhite diningroom suit in beautifully marked San Domingo mahogany.

But to go back a century. There was Chippendale, who designed those rare things in straight, comfortable lines, not unlike the suit shown here. Plain or with the hair lines of inlaid white holly. Then came the Sheritons, who used the same design, but added the little inlaid fan-shape ornaments in the corner. Then Heplewhite, who added the festoons and drapery effects in the center of panels.

This suit we picture here is an exact and beautiful reproduction of a Heplewhite. If we could "age it" in some magic way the price would be in the thousands; but we do not carry sentiment into the price. The suit, as pictured here, consisting of sideboard, table, china-closet, six side chairs and two arm-chairs, done in leather, all San Domingo mahogany with white holly inlay and chairs done in leather.

COTTON VERY WEAK AND UNSETTLED

Under Continued Liquidation and Bear Pressure.

Private Crop Report, Showing Improvement Instead of Deterioration as Expected, Weakened Market—Record-Breaking Into Sight Figures an Influence.

New York, November 2.—The cotton market was very weak and unsettled during today's trading, and reached new low levels for the movement. The close was steady, but within a couple points of the bottom, at a net decline of 13@19 points. Sales for the day were estimated at 300,000 bales.

The market opened steady at an advance of 1 point on November, but generally 3@5 points lower in response to lower cables, a renewal of bear pressure and liquidation. The decline to 9.99 for January, and 10.17 for March caught no stop loss orders of consequence, and the market rallied a few points, but pressure was renewed on the advance and the market weakened after a private crop report was issued, showing an improvement in the condition of the crop for the last two weeks of 2 per cent instead of a deterioration as looked for. The second break uncovered stop orders, and January touched 9.91, and March 10.07, or 19 to 20 points under the closing figures of the previous day, and about 140 points down from the high point reached on October 15. There was enough covering at the decline to steady the market slightly, but no fresh buying for the account. Record-breaking into sight figures helped the bear side.

Receipts at the ports today 66,691 bales, against 64,524 last week, and 60,137 last year. For the week 480,000 bales, against 467,415 last week, and 350,289 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans 15,425, against 6,530 last year, and at Houston 19,280, against 18,708 last year.

New Orleans Cotton Market.

New Orleans, November 2.—Spot cotton closed quiet at 3-16c lower—quotations revised—middling 10 1-8c. Spot sales were 1,675 bales and 2,975 to arrive. Futures opened steady, but 16 to 18 points lower under bear pressure and liquidation of longs. The heavy movement and the Giles statement both tended to keep prices on the decline. The market closed steady 25 to 29 points under Wednesday's final figures.

The Dry Goods Market.

New York, November 2.—The dry goods market holds firm and quiet. Trading is lively in some lines of white goods for delivery next year. The raw wool market is firm, but there has been little business stirring. The jobbing trade for the day was fairly active on heavy goods for fall.

Liverpool Cotton Market.

Liverpool, November 2, 12:30 p. m.—Cotton, spots moderate business done; prices easier 6 points lower; middling upland 5.80; sales 7,000 bales; speculation and export 500; receipts 39,000, of which 38,900 American.

Futures opened quiet and steady.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.

New York, November 2.—COTTON—Liquidation set in after the opening, continuing to bring out long cotton until a decline of nearly 20 points was recorded. At this point the market found buyers, which checked the downward movement. This decline was assisted by what the trade thought was a rather bearish circular by a crop reporter, but more by the liquidation of those who bought freely this morning for a reaction. They were again disappointed at the absence of any large buying orders from spinners on the basis of 10c, and the slow but continuous selling by the south against purchases of spot cotton carried prices lower.

Gibert & Clay.

New Orleans, November 2.—COTTON—A noticeable lack of interest was manifested abroad and options merely followed the course of the American markets. Closing prices were 9 points lower than yesterday, while 7,000 bales changed hands at a loss in quotations of 6 points. The situation has undergone little, if any, change over the local holiday yesterday. The continued favorable weather for picking and marketing the crop and the heaviness of the movement as indicated by the week end figures has but intensified the prevailing sentiment, and the market's only support at the moment is the fear of overdoing the decline. Undoubtedly as a result of so numerous bearish influences there has resulted a considerable short interest, which, being unstable and quick to seek cover on any unfavorable circumstances, would readily cause a temporary improvement were liquidation to set in. Showers in the western belt are expected tomorrow, which of itself is an unfavorable influence, for now the market being so largely dependent upon the liberality of the movement that any setback or delay would naturally create sufficient concern to bring about a prompt reaction.

A more far-reaching view, however, would suggest that eliminating temporary improvements still lower prices are in prospect as a result of convictions that a large crop is assured.

New York, November 2.—STOCKS—The market advanced steadily today with a wider distribution of business and increase in volume of trade. Stimulating causes included a somewhat improved feeling on the political situation, but more particularly a renewal of interest in natural market influences stimulated by Pennsylvania dividend, and aided by the Reading statement and aggregate railroad earning reports published in the news items today. The improvement in the market yesterday and today would probably mark the limit of pre-election activity and confidence, if other causes were not at work and perhaps as it is, the situation may not materially change in these respects until Wednesday. Meantime the passing of election day will, in any event, relieve the tension on public and permit a resumption of normal business conditions undisturbed by consideration of possibilities of change in public policies on the one hand, or the certainty of certain policies being adopted on the other.

L. J. Anderson & Co.

New York, November 2.—COTTON—Despite the efforts of the bulls, certain pit professionals caused a further break in the cotton future market today, and January was carried substantially under ten cents. The movement continued to show evidence of further expansion, and the trade seemed satisfied to look for a very bearish census report next week. It is now figured that this report will show fully half a million bales ginned in excess of the same period last year. Several private crop estimates were made public, and one in particular, showing an improvement in the condition of the crop, served to confirm the belief in a big yield and simultaneously it was maintained that spinners might shortly withdraw their support from the spot market. Southern speculative sentiment appeared to be quite bearish, though private telegrams asserted that since some of the southern shorts have taken profits now, they may work to pull in some of their gains on any further recessions. The week-end statistics late today were bearish, as expected, and the general receipts from September 1 to date are substantially ahead of last year, and only about 400,000 bales behind 1904. Late rumors were that the Wall street contingent is long of the market, and that certain pit interests are trying to force the stock market crowd to take its losses. The Price brokers are believed to be closely allied with the Wall street element. Short interest has increased tremendously in the past few days and on further declines it is believed there will be considerable covering.

WHEAT WAS FIRM IN EARLY SESSION

Firm Cables and Bullish News From Argentina, Factors.

Late in the Day the Market Turned Weak on Heavy Realizing, Caused by Break in Prices at Minneapolis—Close Was Weak.

Chicago, November 2.—Liquidation by local holders caused moderate weakness today in the local wheat market, the December delivery closing at a net loss of 1-4@3-8c. Corn was down 1-8@1-4c. Oats were a shade higher. Provisions were 7 1-2 to 17 1-2@20c lower.

Sentiment in the wheat pit at the opening was inclined to the buying side and the trading was active. The factors for higher prices were firm cables, small receipts in the northwest and a decrease in the Argentine shipments from 968,000 bushels last week to 892,000 bushels this year. Crop advices from Argentina were also of a bullish character, one report claiming that the crop in certain provinces is deteriorating because of an absence of rain. This news caused considerable buying by pit traders during the first half hour. The market gradually eased off, and late in the day became quite weak. A feature of the late trading was the realizing sales by local holders, who were induced to sell on a break in prices of wheat at Minneapolis. The close was weak. December opened a shade to 1-8c higher at 74 7-8 to 74 7-8@75c, sold up to 76c and declined to 74¾-8c. Closing quotations were at 74 1-2c. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 680,000 bushels. Exports for the week as shown by Bradstreet's were equal to 4,500,000 bushels. Primary receipts were 992,000 bushels compared with 1,169,000 for the corresponding day a year ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 565 cars, against 600 last week and 856 a year ago.

Trading in the corn pit was quiet and the tone of the market was steady. The weather was favorable for the movement of the crop, but the movement showed only a slight increase. Liberal shipments from Argentina had a bearish effect on the market. The close was steady. December opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 43 3-8 to 43 1-2c, sold off to 43 1-4c and closed at 43 1-4c. Local receipts 179 cars, 83 contract grade.

Oats were fairly active and the market was inclined to be firm on small receipts and in sympathy with the strength of wheat. There was a fair demand by outsiders and selling was large, by small holders. December opened 1-8c higher at 33 3-4c, sold between 33 5-8 and 33 3-4@33 7-8c and closed at 33 5-8@33 3-4c. Local receipts 165 cars.

Provisions were weak on selling by local longs. The selling pressure was caused by the monthly statement which showed that stocks of provisions in Chicago are larger than had been expected. At the close January pork was off 17 1-2@20c at $13.97 1-2@14. Lard was down 10c at $8.52 1-2. Ribs were 7 1-2c lower at $7.62 1-2.

Estimated receipts for tomorrow: Wheat 42 cars; corn 269 cars; oats 193 cars; hogs 11,000 head.

The leading futures ranged as follows.

JOHN FOSTER CO.

Store people who have something to sell find their most difficult work to be CONVINCING THE BUYER, after they show their goods.

We have no such trouble at our establishment, and our main efforts are, therefore, put forth in getting people to see our goods. The rest is easy. Pictures are pretty, and they are all right—we use them to illustrate what we have to out-of-town buyers—but when, possible, we would rather show the goods. And this is the reason:

Furniture (and we are talking furniture in this ad) is the most expensive article on the market today. Not because it should be, but so many people pay too dear for it. Would you believe it? Come and see. We'll sell you a suit of furniture—from the factory—as cheap as a retailer can buy it. And that means from 50 to 200 per cent cheaper than he will sell it to you.

We'll sell you a sideboard, a chiffonier, a china closet, a rocker, a chair or dresser, washstand, iron bed, springs, a mattress, just the same way.

How can we do it? The easiest way to find out is to come and see. But we'll tell you this much. We knock out every profit between the factory and your home—and again let us say that those profits range from 50 to 200 per cent.

We have set apart one whole floor to Furniture—not our stock, but samples. We have marked every sample in plain figures. We would like every housekeeper to see this display. It is not a great cumbersome mass piled high, but it is a select stock with plenty of space to admit of inspection. We are easy to reach. Take a Decatur street and Oakland cemetery car, and alight at Moore street, right at our warerooms. We are in plain view, Nos. 265-267-269-271 Decatur street, corner Moore.

We are ready for all comers now. We have taken plenty of time to arrange everything just right before inviting the trade, in this special Furniture line, to call. Now come, inspect, select, price and then give us just a few days to fill your order, and the factory will do the rest.

How To Get the Best at a Greatly Reduced Rate.

A great man once said "There is no friend so desirable as a reliable, clean daily newspaper." If he were alive today, he would add to his statement, "Next to a newspaper, come high grade magazines." The Constitution realizing this truth, has arranged to send the "Review of Reviews," the "Woman's Home Companion," "Success," and the daily and Sunday Constitution for one year at a greatly reduced price. The regular price of these publications is $12.00. There is no better magazine for grown up people than the Review of Reviews. There is no more pleasing periodical for the ladies than the Woman's Home Companion. There is no publication for the young people that is more ennobling in its character than Success. There is no daily newspaper published in the southern states that is cleaner, or more up-to-date, than The Constitution. To persons living in the city of Atlanta, these publications will be sent for one year for the sum of $8.90. To persons living outside of the city, $9.00.

A Fromage Fantasy.

A tiny bit of Camembert!
What strange illusions linger there!
What visions direful and distressed
Through hours that should be sweet with rest!

Who'd think that 'neath your creamy guise
The sting of nitric acid lies
Or that you could such pictures draw
More strange than Dante ever saw?

As mildly white as melting snow
You are, alas, to those who know,
More potent than the weirdest drop
That ever left a chemist's shop.

Compared with you how trifling seems
The source of Monte Cristo's dreams.
Both hemp and poppy fail to shape
Your mystic might, oh, Camembert.

When you drink whiskey you're entitled to the best. Especially when you pay the price. But you seldom get it as long as you're willing to take the unbranded sort that is handed out in a plain bottle. A whiskey that's good, is good enough to have a name, so that it may be called for again, and again. The plain bottle sort is profitable to the dealer, but where do you come in? You can change the order of things, and always get a thoroughly good whiskey, if you call for MARK ROGERS, and be sure that you get it. It costs the dealer more, because it's high-grade and has real merit, and that's the kind you pay for. It's really delicious, and you'll linger over the last drop.

Begin now, ask for it, and insist upon it. At all good places.

SHORT INTEREST DRIVEN TO COVER

Resulted in Sharp Advance in Reading and Hill Stocks.

Prospect of a Poor Bank Statement Failed to Affect Prices—In the Late Trading Profit-Taking on the Advance Caused Sharp Recession.

New York, October 2.—The advance in stocks which was stimulated at first by the increase in the Pennsylvania dividend, was continued today on an increased volume of business. There was evidence to indicate large buying by an uncovered short interest and this was particularly urgent in the stocks which rose most sharply. It manifested itself first in the Hill stocks in the 9 1-4-point jump in Great Northern preferred and 5 1-4 points in Northern Pacific. No news was forthcoming to explain the violent rise in these stocks and it was generally attributed to the squeeze of an incautious short interest. The same influence was credited with the aggressive advance in Reading. The only news regarding that stock was the report of net earnings for September, which showed a falling off from September of last year, both for the coal company and the railroad company, the decrease for all companies reaching $427,159, or 23 per cent. The fact became obvious that there has been a large amount of short selling in the market, based on the assumption that a period of unsettlement and depression was certain to intervene before the election, which would afford an opportunity to cover shorts at a profit. There was an extensive retirement of such commitments today, the weakness of their position being aggravated by the sympathetic effect on the general list of the increase in the Pennsylvania dividend. That stock was still active today, but it was held back from a further advance over yesterday's high level by free profit taking, while Pennsylvania railroad net earnings for September were also published and showed that hte increase in gross earnings had been practically eaten up by the growth in operating expenses.

The course of the call loan market did not interrupt the improvement in prices of stocks, in spite of the prospect for a poor bank statement tomorrow. The subtreasury had taken from the banks up to Thursday night $3,530,000 and trustworthy estimates of the movement of currency to the interior indicated a further loss on that account sufficient to bring the total decrease to nearly $7,000,000. Professional profit taking on the day's advance became general under cover of the late stages of the advance in Reading, and the market closed easy and materially below the highest prices of the day.

Bonds steady. Total sales, par value, $2,794,000.

United tSates 3s advanced 1-4 per cent on call.

Money on call firm at 4@7 per cent; ruling rate 6; closing bid 5; offered at 6. Time loans stronger; sixty and ninety days 7 per cent; six month 6 per cent.

Prime mercantile paper 6@8 1-2 per cent. Sterling exchange steady with actual business in bankers' bills at 4.8570@4.8575 for demand and at 4.8035@4.8040 for sixty-day bills. Posted rates 4.81 1-2 and 4.86 1-2. Commercial bills 4.80 1-2.

Bar silver 70 7-8c.

Mexican dollars 54 5-8c.

Government bonds firm; railroad bonds steady.

These make the total movement of the cotton crop brought into sight during the two months ending with the close of October 3,349,011, against 3,507,518 last year, 3,761,664 year before last and 2,707,418 same time in 1903.

Edmund & Charles Randolph.

New York, November 2.—COTTON—The Giles report proved more bearish than had been expected and was followed by a decline which carried December to 9.86, January to 9.91 and March to 10.07. The market quieted down around this level after some pretty active trading and the undertone seemed unsettled. There was pretty heavy selling during the middle session and it looked as if the Liverpool people were letting go part of their cotton.

Southern spot markets, so far reported, are unchanged. The market is now 140 points down from the high point of the season and sentiment is as bearish now as it was bullish then. The turn may not be immediately at hand. There has been nothing in the trading to indicate so much as that, but below 10 cents we think the average trader will take profits on shorts. Meanwhile, the expectation of a bearish census report is being, if not already, discounted. Spots unchanged at New York, 3-16c lower at New Orleans. Liverpool due to come 6 points lower to meet our close.

New York, November 2.—STOCKS—Secretary Root's speech and the confidence it begot in the success of Hughes' candidacy induced quite an accession of public buying this morning, but the movement met heavy selling orders on an advancing scale, which looked as if they had their origin at 25 Broadway, and the market was checked. The larger interests here are opposed to any speculative demonstration at this time, owing to the condition of the money market. Pennsylvania was the principal feature of the day. It opened at 144½, and after an advance to 145¼, sold back to near the opening. The market generally closed somewhat higher. Reading was another feature, but its movements are due to professional manipulation pure and simple, which has for its purpose bleeding the public. The indications are that we will have a very poor bank statement tomorrow. The tone at the close was steady.

THE TRADE SITUATION.

New York, November 2.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

"Clear and colder weather has improved retail trade and stimulated reorder business greatly, resulting in a record October trade with jobbers, besides helping the coal trade and kindred lines. Industries are active, labor scarcity is still a feature, iron and steel markets are advancing and large imports are the only apparent source of relief.

"Cotton goods are a trifle quieter but very firm, because of scarcity of supplies, while woolen goods have been stimulated by good reports as to retail sales of heavy clothing. Holiday trade preparations and sales have been so far encouraging. Spring business is in good volume as a whole. The only really hurtful development itself an outgrowth of superabundant prosperity, is the growing tension as regards the transportation facilities. Collections are irregular, southern payments being better, while grain blockades interfere with western and northwestern receipts. It has been a week of easing prices in cotton and values of both spot and futures are lower. Failur of rent frosts to do damage is indicated.

"Wool prices are rather steadier as the large transactions of the past two weeks have lifted a load from dealers' hands.

"In unfinished textile lines there has been somewhat of a lull in cottons, due as much to large advance orders booked and scant supplies as to the natural quieting down of fall demand. All makes of goods are strong in price, and confidence is general in woolens the better weather has made for a better tone.

"Pig iron prices continue to move upward, the advances ranging from $1 to $2 per ton on goods purchased for 1907 delivery. Demand for prompt supplies, which appear to be growing scarcer, is more insistent. Foreign iron is being engaged in volume and No. 1 Scotch brings $21 at the tide water, while No. 1 Middlesborough is quoted at $21.50@22; the spread between domestic and foreign makes being much less than on preceding heavy import movements. Ore shipments in October eclipses previous records, and the season's movement is expected to approximate 37,000,000 tons. It seems to be agreed that next season's minimum price of Messba Bessemr ore will be $5 a ton at Lake Erie ports. Steel rails are in fair request.

"Strustural material is in good demand, steel car works are specifying freely, and some good-sized orders for ship plates have been placed.

"Leather has been active at Boston, 200,000 hides of hemlock soles changing hands.

"Business failures in the United States for the week ending November 1, number 163 against 184 last week and 160 in 1905.

"Canadian failures for the week number 21 as against 20 last week and 26 in this week a year ago.

"Wheat, including flour exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending November 1, aggregated 4,492,974 bushels against 5,188,817 last week and 6,283,399 this week last year. For the past eighteen weeks of the fiscal year the exports are 62,666,469 bushels against 33,355,827 bushels in 1905.

"Corn exports for the week are 1,300,211 bushels against 1,495,111 last week and 1,009,210 a year ago. For the fiscal year to date the exports are 14,616,159 bushels against 18,986,773 in 1905."

Dun's Weekly Review.

New York, November 2.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade tomorrow will say:

"Colder weather has removed one of the drawbacks to seasonable distribution of merchandise, but there is still much complaint of traffic conditions. Congestion on the railways was increased by the destruction of vessels during the recent gulf storm and a much heavier tonnage of freight is delayed than usual, though there is always a car famine at this season. Retail trade shows improvement in nearly all sections, and mercantile collections are more prompt.

"Returns fro mthe iron and steel industry could not easily be brighter, and footwear factories have abundant orders on hand.

"After several weeks of pressure to place contracts for cotton goods there is a natural season of quiet, but the mills have secured sufficient business to assure many months of active machinery. Eastern wool sales have attained record proportions, but the late fall has delayed the demand for woolens.

"Primary receipts of wheat are not in keeping with a maximum crop on account of freight delays as the season advances.

"With increasing urgency for delivery of iron and steel, regardless of further advances in prices, even the most conservative purchasers give up hope of better terms and are struggling to place contracts before another fraction is added to the price or another month to the remoteness of delivery. Spot quotations for pig iron are really nominal because nothing is offered and very fancy prices would be paid for billets that could be shipped immediately. Foreign trade in this industry is large despite domestic needs.

"Recent vigorous activity in the primary markets for cotton goods has been followed by customary quiet conditions which are necessary for assimilation and adjustment. Diminished interest in goods and the lower price of the raw material leaves the matter of market values dependent upon the readiness with which jobbers find their recent purchases distributed. Stocks in the hands of western dealers are believed to be tight and a improvement has occurred in the export division, but many looms formerly engaged on foreign work have been diverted to relieve the domestic pressure, which maintains active machinery in all departments."

Atlanta Building Lots

At the rate that lots are being used up in Atlanta, any place to put a house on will be hard to find in a few years.

A building lot in Atlanta is a safe as a government bond; enhancement in value renders it a profitable investment. Taxes on a small residence lot amount to very little, and no repairs or insurance has to be looked after. For people who want to make small investments that are safe and profitable, an Atlanta lot is the thing.

Let us tell you of some good ones to buy.
